FIGHT FOR LIFE OF 'EYE BABY'

Eye Baby's Tragedy —Grief-stricken parents of tragic Jimmie Maloof pray beside his bed of pain in City Hospital. The 16-months-old boy is fighting for his life after having had one eye removed to halt the spread of a malignant tumor. Now, specialists are engaged in a double battle over the bandaged child . . . to save the sight of his one remaining eye, and to save his flickering life.

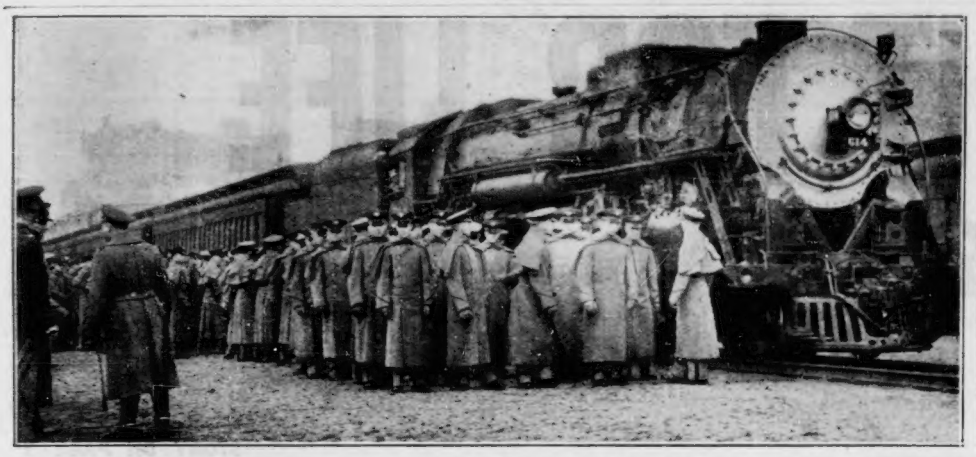
Cadets in Hub Parade Thrill Cheering Crowds

"For There's Something About A Soldier . . ."

Feminine hearts flutter and manly breasts swell with pride as the ranks go marching past but it takes the West Point Cadets to furnish the thrill of thrills for man and maid.



HARVARD, THEY'RE HERE—Looking forward to an afternoon menu featured by Coach Harlow's Crimson a la Grid, West Point's cadet's detrain at Huntington avenue railroad yards for Harvard's football game today.

Almost 1000 strong they effected a peaceful invasion of Boston today to attend the classic Army-Harvard gridiron battle in Cambridge.

Ten times that number of civilians greeted them as they detrainedfrom West Point in the Huntington avenue railroad yards and at least 50,000 more lined the sidewalks to watch them parade to Park street subway station.

In the subway they boarded special trains for Harvard square where their lines were again formed for a march to Sever quadrangle and the Harvard Union for a belated breakfast.

PARADE 'EYES FRONT'

During their march downtown from the railroad siding their eyes were "front", despite the bevy of college co-eds on practically every Back Bay corner.

West Point discipline scorns even the blandishments of Wellesley and Radcliffe and lesser colleges on the line of march.

Emerson College girls, massed on the steps of their alma mater in Beacon street, tried in vain to catch the cadet eye.

Even co-ed cheers for Harvard failed to turn the West oPint heads.

Quick-stepping to a 65-piece band, the cadets drew vociferous cheers from downtown spectators on the parade through Dartmouth and Beacon streets to Park street station.

There about 200 were dismissed for family reunions and pre-arranged "dates" with eager sweethearts.

The remainder enfiladed down the subway stairways to four special trains which bore them to their Cambridge destination.

MARCH TO STADIUM

After breakfast at Harvard Union they again fell into battalion formation for the march to the Stadium.

After the game the West Point visitors will be given carte blanche freedom till midnight, when they are under orders to report to the Huntington avenue train sheds for the return trip to the academy.

Billion and Half Defense Budget Roosevelt Plan

(Copyright, 1938)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (INS)—President Roosevelt will send to Congress, when it convenes in January, the most momentous national defense message since Woodrow Wilson, 22 years ago, told the nation it must go to war.

The President's message will be one of peace, but of a peace and security that, in a world where nations are armed to the teeth, he and his advisers are convinced can be assured only by military strength.

He will tell Congress and the American people that billions must be spent to make the United States so strong that no foreign power, or combination of powers, would dare attack it.

The President, it was predicted, is expected to ask for a minimum national defense budget of $1,500,000,000 for next year.

The sum, it was conceded, might even exceed this figure, the largest by many hundreds of millions of any national defense appropriation in peace time.

The President's message is expected to contain a warning that this, the world's wealthiest nation, can no longer depend upon its geographical isolation for safety.

He is expected to point out that it is urgently necessary to give not only the navy, but the air corps and army as well, the modern equipment and trained men needed to defend the Western Hemisphere.

The administration is convinced, it was learned, that the United States will not be able to count in a future emergency on other nations to help hold off an attacker.

Nazis, Brazil Recall Envoys

BERLIN, Oct. 15 (INS)—German-Brazilian diplomatic relations were ruptured today, according to an official announcement which revealed the two nations have withdrawn their respective ambassadors from Berlin and Rio de Janeiro.

The announcement disclosing the break, which climaxed a steadily increasing strain in relations, stated:

"The Brazilian government informed the Reich that the German ambassador, Dr. Karl Ritter, is not desired in Rio de Janeiro.

"The Reich government thereupon expressed the greatest astonishment at such an unmotivated step, and requested that the Brazilian ambassador here be withdrawn.

"Dr. Ritter will be appointed to special work in the foreign office here."

During the period that the break remains in effect charges des affaires will remain in charge of the embassies at both capitals and conduct the business of the two countries.

The quarrel originated over alleged Nazi activities in Brazil and as an aftermath of President Getulio Vargas' anti-Nazi drive regarding which Ambassador Ritter took a strong stand.

It is understood Ritter also attempted to stem the American trade drive in Brazil.

Woman Grabs Gun, Foils Holdup Try

Police sought today through a handkerchief-mask and a revolver to trace the identity of an armed bandit who was driven off by Mrs. Grace Doane, 66, of St. Botolph street, Back Bay.

The plucky woman, struck over the head with the gun, refused to surrender her money. She tore the mask from his face and the gun from his grasp before he fled.

Fog, Calm Balk Schooner Race

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 15 (INS)—Peasoup fog and no wind today forced postponement until Sunday of the third international fishermen's race between the Nova Scotia champion Bluenose and the Gloucester schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud. It was the second postponement in two days.

Stunt Flier Off On Bucharest Hop

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Alexander Papana, one of the world's foremost stunt fliers, took off from Floyd Bennett Field at 9:01 a. m. (EST) today for Miami, first leg of a flight to Bucharest, Rumania, by way of the South Atlantic.

Accompanying him was Max Constant, Burbank, Cal., flier and former movie writer.

Czechs Agree To New Parley With Hungary

LONDON, Oct. 15 (INS)—At the insistence of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, Czechoslovakia and Hungary have agreed to resume direct negotiations for settlement of the latter's minority and territorial claims, it was stated authoritatively here today.

As a consequence, Hungary's appeal to the four-power pact signatories to settle the issue is being rescinded.

VIENNA, Oct. 15 (AP)—United States consular officials today reported a "considerable increase" in the number of Sudeten Germans applying for entry into the United States.

They said applications began to pour in, chiefly from Jews, as soon as it became clear the Sudeten territory was to be absorbed by Germany.

So many residents of German Austria want to emigrate to the United States that under the present quota of 600 a month it would take more than nine years for all the applicants to get past Ellis Island. The consulate already has a waiting list of 65,000 names.

SETTLE LONDON STRIKE

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP)—An unofficial strike of railway freight handlers, teamsters and truck drivers was settled today by their vote to return to work at midnight Sunday.

Stocks Start New Upswing

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—The stock market lurched forward today, after its slight relapse in the preceding session, and favored issues posted advances running to more than $1 a share.

Aircrafts, coppers, utilities and industrial specialties led the upswing which, shortly after the opening, put the ticker tape behind two minutes.

Activity flattened out later but prices were near the best in the closing hour.

Grieving Parents Can Only Wait and Pray

Doctors Battle to Save Boston 'Eye Baby's' Life

Little Jimmie Maloof, only 16 months old, lay critically ill today in City Hospital with the eyes of all the medical world focused on his battle for life and sight.

While skilled physicians employed every aid of science—Jimmie's parents prayed.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Elias Maloof of Oak street, South End, and they "know" God will save their baby and let him see.

TRAGIC BABY—His body racked by pain, his head bandaged because a tumor cost him an eye, little Jimmie Maloof, 16-months-old, tosses in his crib at City Hospital . . . threatened with a life of darkness . . . if he lives.

Hiding the grief they feel, Mr. and Mrs. Elias A. Maloof of South End arrive at City Hospital to see their stricken son, Jimmie. A malignant tumor already has cost the boy one eye . . . with his life now in the balance.

The child bravely survived a dangerous operation, removal of his right eye—glioma-infected and sightless.

While the baby's parents knelt in prayer at his side, surgeons on another floor conducted tests to determine the fate of his other eye, also infected.

For weeks his parents had been aware there was something the matter with their baby's eyes. He was brushing against furniture. He was squinting his eyes and was frequently in pain.

LEARNED FATEFUL NEWS

"God has answered my prayers," Mrs. Maloof said thankfully today.

"I now have faith Jimmie is going to get well in time."

To reporters she unfolded a story of love for her child which can be matched by only the most devoted of mothers.

She revealed she learned of the baby's ailment when se took him to a South End clinic for an inoculation.

She was told there appeared little hope for his life, she said.

Crash in Fog Kills South Boston Girl

Ruth Elizabeth Leary, 25, a lodger in Bolton street, South Boston, was injured fatally today when the automobile in which she was a passenger collided with a truck in heavy fog in Main street, Reading.

Suitor Halts Car, Kills Girl

RAUBSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Hazel Cronce Shrope, 22, of Frenchtown, N. J., was shot to death early today in what police said was a quarrel with a man who recently paid her attentions.

The shooting occurred on the Delaware river road, near here, as Mrs. Shrope and four companions were returning home from a dance. She died en route to an Easton hospital.

Pennsylvania and New Jersey state police immediately sent out a two-state alarm for a man identified as Amos Hart, 22, also of Frenchtown.

Police quoted Mrs. Shrope's companions as saying their car was halted between Raubsville and nearby Reigelsville by another car which had been placed crosswise in the highway.

As they stopped, a man whom police said the companions identified as Hart strode up and shot Mrs. Shrope.

Rushed to the New England Sanitarium, Stoneham, she died of a fractured skull within a few hours.

Her escort, Ernest A. Perry of Main street, Charlestown, escaped injury, as did the driver of the truck, Frank D. Scholes of Manchester, N. H.

According to police, Perry's auto veered after scraping another car and crashed into the on-coming truck.

High Court Maps Bridges Decision

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Supreme Court considered today litigation that may affect deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, West Coast leader.

Before the justices at their regular Saturday conference was a government petition seeking a review of the decision by the fifth circuit court of appeals reversing a deportation order against Joseph G. Strecker of Hot Springs, Ark.

WED IN SECRET—Gotham's cafe society gets something new to talk about when Gloria Spreckels, divorced wife of sugar heir, and Princeton student Eugene Colley Morrison are secretly married. Now, they're off to Cuban honeymoon.

Spreckels 'Ex' Weds Student

HOPEWELL JUNCTION, N. Y., Oct. 15—Gloria Debevoise Spreckels, the divorced wife of Adolph Spreckels, Jr., heir to sugar millions, was on her second honeymoon today with Eugene Colley Morrison, Princeton student.

Nobody knows where they were married or exactly when. Mrs. Joseph Cannon, mother of young Morrison, said that his telegram announcing the wedding added the information they were on their way to Cuba.

The family that has married into the Spreckels is in modest circumstances, but Mrs. Cannon wasn't overjoyed. She said she thought the boy too young.

Sour Notes For Maestros

LOS ANGELIS, Oct. 15 (AP)—The marital troubles of two orchestra leaders were in the courts today—one in a $100,000 loss of love suit by Mrs. Eula Martene Rich, wife of Freddie Rich, and the other in a divorce action instituted by Mrs. Maxine Heindorf against Raymond Heindorf.

Mrs. Rich sued Miss Elizabeth Gordon of Beverly Hills, Calif., asserting that in December, 1936, Miss Gordon began a campaign to win Rich's affections, with the result that he left home a month later.

Mrs. Heindorf charged her husband was so lacking in affection that in 1937 she attempted suicide.

Right to a 'T'

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS)—Confounding the experts, P. W. Nash, a Wall Street broker, emerged today as a front rank tea taster, scoring 100 per cent in a contest staged by the wine and food society.

Nash won his laurels after a professional taster offered to stake his reputation that no amateur could get all the answers.

Spy to Tell How Nazis Stole U. S. Arms Plans

COVERING HER face, Miss Johanna Hoffmann climbs from patrol wagon to enter New York court for trial as a Nazi spy. Three others were accused with her. One, Guenther Rumrich, pleaded guilty. Inset show Johanna smiling even after Rumrich indicated he would testify against her.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS)—The amazing story of how secret information on navy ships, army planes and coast defense plans were stolen from guarded files by order of the German war ministry will be told from the witness stand by Guenther Gustave Rumrich, confessed Nazi spy, it was disclosed today.

Rumrich, contact man for the German spy ring, whose guilty plea yesterday dramatically interrupted the espionage trial of himself and three others, is prepared to reveal the full extent of the Nazis' undercover efforts to obtain vital national defense secrets.

The 32-year-old former army sergeant is expected to incriminate his co-defendants, who are:

Erich Glaser, 28, private in the 18th Reconnaisance Squadron, Mitchell Field.

Otto Herman Voss, 36, airplane mechanic.

Johanna Hofmann, 26, hairdresser aboard the S.S. Europa, who allegedly served as the ring's messenger.

United States Attorney Lamar Hardy, chief prosecutor, gave ample indication that Rumrich will be his most valuable witness.

With a jury selected the sessions are due to get under way Monday morning.

Dartmouth Mystery Youth Seals Lips

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 15 (AP)—While state police broadcast his description and mailed his fingerprints to police authorities throughout the east, an unidentified youth being held at the New Hampshire State Hospital here, today insisted:

"No one will ever find out who my parents are."

The young man, who told hospital officials that his name was "Jack Ross," and that he was 20, was picked up in a semi-conscious condition on the Dartmouth College campus at Hanover five days ago.

"Ross," who said he was born in Kansas City, reiterated today to D. C. O. Ranger, senior psychiatrist at the hospital, that he did know who he was, except for remembering his name and place of birth. State police communicated with Kansas City police.

Apartment Men Meet Tuesday

Final arrangements were made today for the fall dinner meeting of the Apartment House Owners' Association at the Hotel Kenmore next Tuesday evening.

Those who have signed for group tables are Harold Niles of the Boston Management Corporation, Melvin Hill of Hill Management, William H. Dyer of Dyer and Company, Homer T. Brown, Joseph G. Mazur, Benjamin Rudnick, Charles A. Malley, Clifford V. Miller and others.

There will be musical and vocal entertainment.

R. I. Torpedo Base Damage $300,000

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 15 (AP)—Commander Isaac C. Johnson of the naval torpedo station here, after receiving word that President Roosevelt in Washington had refused to sanction use of PWA funds for hurricane repairs to naval stations, said damage to the Newport station would exceed $300,000.

Four airplanes were wrecked and a fifth was lost completely, when the Sept. 21 storm hit the Gould Island base here. A $10,000 torpedo, carrying a reward of $50 for its return, was lost at sea.

Roosevelt Going To Theater Tonight

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt arranged to see a musical comedy tonight, attending the theater for the second time since he has been in the White House.

The play is "Knickerbocker Holiday," now showing at the National theater here. Walter Huston has the main part—that of Peter Stuyvesant, an early governor of New York.

Among the New York councilmen portrayed in the play is one named "Roosevelt."

Storm Stands Still Off Florida Coast

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 15 (AP)—The Weather Bureau reported early today a moderate tropical disturbance hovering over the Gulf of Mexico had shown no indications of resuming its forward motion.

STRANGLED and gagged with some of her clothing, the body of Alice May Girton, 17, of Winchester, Indiana, was found in her bedroom at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Confesses Sex Killing Of Student

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 15 (AP)—State's attorneys indicated today they would demand the death penalty for Adrian H. Miller, 31, of Racine, Wis., confessed sex slayer of 17-year-old Alice May Girton of Winchester, Ind.

Detective Captain John Taylor said Miller confessed smothering the pretty brunette business college student with a pillow and attacking her Thursday in the rooming house here where both lived. She was found hours later, choked to death with her own silk underclothes.

Miller, who came here last June to study engineering in a technical school, was held without bond for the grand jury on a first degree murder charge.

The penalty for first degree murder in Indiana is death or life imprisonment.

The grand jury will study photographs of the crime as re-enacted by Miller for police. Before staging the grim show at the scene yesterday, Miller took a peaceful nap in his own room across the hall.

Earlier, though, he had collapsed as he was about to enter city court for a hearing. Howard Zimmerman, 19, of Riga, Mich., friend of Miss Girton, held as a material witness, helped carry him to a chair.

The murdered girl's funeral was held today at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gail Girton, at Winchester.

Count Tolstoy Wed To Poet's Ex-Wife

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15 (AP)—Count Ilya Tolstoy, grandson of the Russian author and Mrs. Beatrice Ames Stewart, former wife of Donald Ogden Stewart, author and poet, were married here at the Southern Hotel.

After announcing his marriage, the count and his bride rushed to the airport, where a chartered plane took them back to New York City.

National Battle Seen on Ousting Of Teacher

The battle to regain her lost position as a Medfield school teacher launched by Miss Christina Alach of Framingham threatened to become a national issue in scholastic circles today.

Miss Alach was fired as a fifth grade teacher because a newspaper photo showed her participating in a demonstration in Boston against the Munich four-power pact a week ago.

Today two Massachusetts teachers' unions launched a campaign for national support of teachers' unions in behalf of the Framingham girl.

The executive committee of the Boston Federation of Teachers, in a communication to its parent body, the American Federation of Teachers, branded the action of the Medfield officials as "a brazen and brutal denial to Miss Alach of the rights the Constitution guarantees every citizen."

Officers of the Cambridge Union of University Teachers charged the Medfield school committee had set a dangerous precedent and was "clearly guilty of a flagrant violation of an elementary right of American citizens."

Miss Alach has already been offered, and has accepted, the aid of the Massachusetts Civil Liberties Committee in her fight for reinstatement.

Curley to Take Stand Again

The perjury trial of Frederick H. Graves rested today for the week-end following the dramatic denial by former Mayor James M. Curley of all of the defendant's story of the $85,000 settlement with the General Equipment Corporation.

Curley denied any connection with the now-famous settlement, even stating that he had opposed giving the company a single cent for alleged water damage to its property.

The former mayor, who with Dr. Joseph Santosuosso was ordered to repay the city $60,000 in connection with that settlement, is scheduled to resume the stand when the case continues Monday.

Hold 2 Suspects In Girl Murder

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 15 (INS)—Two suspects in the attack-murder of 17-year-old Mary Imelda Coyle were under arrest today while Westchester County residents formed a vigilante committee to protect their sons and daughters against reported new attempts to attack children.

One suspect, Peter Fons, 37, liquor dealer, was held here on a disorderly conduct charge.

Another man, Wesley Passeau, alias Harry Sinclair, was held at Norwalk, Conn. He was seized after declaring he had overheard three youths discussing the murder.

Edna Wallace Hopper Loses Her Beauty Ballyhoo Suit

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (INS)—Edna Wallace Hopper, who was called the "perennial flapper" back in the 20's when flappers were in style, has lost her suit for $300,000 against a cosmetics company in federal court.

She claimed that sum for telling women over the radio and by phonograph records that they, too, could retain the charm of youth by using the creams and powders she endorsed. Judge Patrick T. Stone, however, filed a memorandum, holding that Miss Hopper had been amply compensated.

When Miss Hopper testified in the suit last March, she said she was 64. A biographer states she was born January 17, 1864, which would make her 74. She made her stage debut as "Lady Holyrood" in "Florodora" in 1891, and that was 47 years ago.

The cosmetics firm has gone out of business.

She testified that the late O. E. Glidden, then president of the company, sent her telegrams characterizing her work as "marvelous," "phenomenal," "most sensational," and "great, multiplied six times."

Sisters Silent On Big Bequest

Five New England sisters were unable to tell today just what they planned to do with fortunes they are to receive from the division of nearly a half million dollars from the estate of an English spinster aunt.

The five each had the same statement:

"I want to have possession of the money before I make any comments."

Those who will share equally are Mrs. Sara Reardon of West Selden street, Mattapan; Mrs. Bridget Rooney, Miss Edith Farrell and Mrs. Margaret Kenna of Lowell, and Mrs. Mary Rooney of Dover, New Hampshire.

They will receive approximately $69,714 each. Another sister, in England, and a brother, in Ireland, will get corresponding bequests.

The spinster was Miss Edith Walker, who inherited the money from her father, Thomas Walker, in 1886. All the beneficiaries are middle-aged or elderly.

Walker disinherited their mother, Jessie Walker Farrell, because she ran away and married a roving horse trader.

The old maid aunt, enjoying the income of the fortune, named the niece and one nephew the beneficiaries, although the founder of the fortune wanted them cut off.

Church Subject On 'Atonement'

The "doctrine of atonement" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read in Christian Science churches tomorrow.

The Golden Text is "God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by Our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us that, we wake or sleep, we should live together with him." (I Thessalonians 5:9, 10).

SHIP HEAD'S WIFE DIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Philip A. S. Franklin, 55, wife of the chairman of the board of United States Lines and the International Mercantile Marine Company, died early today after a brief illness.

Boston Men Have Chance For Pasteur Hero Awards

When the convention of the International Association of Milk Dealers in Cleveland names men for the Pasteur award for heroism, Monday, several Boston men will be in the running.

The awards are made each year by the Milk Industry Foundation.

Boston's outstanding candidates for honors seem to be Francis Charleton of Newton, Frank L. Johnson in Malden, both employes of the H. P. Hood milk company.

Charleton discovered a fire in West street, Newton, on May 28, aroused the four families living in the building, and saved several lives.

Johnson's knowledge of first aid saved the life of Mrs. Victoria Cuff, of Saugus, whom he found unconscious and bleeding to death after she had fallen while carrying a milk bottle.

START WORK ON CREEK

Work of widening and deepening Chelsea creek starts today. The project will cost $540,900. The channel is to be sunk to 30 feet and generally widened to 200 feet.

Curley Bases Campaign Fight On Labor Record

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

Former Governor Curley today narrowed his campaign dispute with Leverett Saltonstall down to "the predominant issue" — their respective records of labor legislation.

The Democratic nominee for governor pictured his own record as rosy, with that of his Republican opponent as "empty and black" over a 16-year period, in a series of rallies at Lynn, Salem, Peabody, Danvers and Beverly.

"The record of Mr. Saltonstall stamps him as a bitter enemy of the people," Curley charged.

Attacking Curley in the absence of Saltonstall, a sufferer from a severe cold, was Russell A. Wood, Republican candidate for state auditor.

He struck out at Curley's claim he is of the people, using the lowly New England baked bean as his weapon. His challenged Curley's ridicule of the recent Republican supper at Mechanics building, at which baked beans were served.

"If the Democratic party would return to this substantial fare of the people they might still lay claim to being a party of the people," Wood declared in Plymouth.

"But with Al Smith in a golden decorated New York apartment, Jim Farley lounging in a Fifth avenue mansion and with J. Michael himself dining on humming bird's tongues in his Jamaicaway palace, we can all see how the Boston bean is being slighted by those who were brought up on them."

Clarence A. Barnes, Republican candidate for attorney general, in a radio address charged that while Attorney General Paul A. Dever slept, the slayer of Louis Gaeta, Revere racketeer, still was carrying on his gambling kingdom in constant touch with Boston.

SEE RECORD VOTE LIST

Boston voting lists today recorded 346,000 names, with four days of registration remaining, and leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties predicted the total number of persons ready to vote Nov. 8 will exceed the record of 336,118 in 1936.

SCREEN star Phyllis Brooks finally found the "man of humor" she once said she could marry. She and Cary Grant are reported about to wed. Cary, a star in his own right, is known to Bostonians as Archie Leach of England. He played here several seasons with Shubert musicals.

Triple Killer to Face N. Y. Jury

VERONICA GEDEON

ROBERT IRWIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS)—Robert Irwin, youthful sculptor and triple murderer of Easter Sunday, 1937, must go on trial for his life on October 27, General Sessions Judge Donnellan decreed today. He also ordered a panel of 250 talesmen from which a blue ribbon jury will be chosen.

Irwin will be tried only on one of three first-degree murder indictments—that for the shoemaker's awl stabbing of Frank Byrnes, boarder in the home of Mrs. Mary Gedeon and her beautiful daughter, Veronica, an artist's model, his other victims.

Samuel Liebowitz, counsel for Irwin, did not oppose the motion of Assistant District Attorney Jacob Rosenblum for the fixing of the trial date.

Irwin, who fled to Chicago after slaying his three victims, later was surrendered and flown back to New York. Upon his incarceration in the tombs prison, he apparently affected insanity and last March was examined by a lunacy commission which reported him sane.

Irwin's motive for the murder, according to the authorities, was unrequited love for the blonde young model. He stabbed Byrnes to death while he slept, after having slain Mrs. Gedeon in her bedroom.

Then he coolly sat down in the darkened room and waited until Veronica returned from a date, when he killed her, too.

Sculptor Must Stand Trial Oct. 27 on Charge of Slaying Model

'Right Man' Is Cary Grant

Less than a year ago when lovely Phyllis Brooks, film actress, was asked by a Hollywood reporter if she had ever anticipated marriage, she answered:

"Certainly. There isn't a woman in the world who doesn't anticipate marriage. I'll be married when I fall in love with the right man."

Reports from the film colony have now revealed the identity of the "right man."

He is Cary Grant, film star who got his first start in America right here in Boston when he appeared at the Shubert Theater as Archie Leach.

Nab Allston Youth In Six-Shot Chase

A 17-year-old Allston youth was held on a charge of breaking and entering today after a police chase through Brookline during which six shots were fired.

The prisoner, who gave the name of Harold J. Bills, of Adamson street, was captured after police were called to a garage where three youths had broken a window.

REPORT PREMIER RESIGNS

LONDON, Oct. 15 (INS)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Lisbon today said it was reported there that Spanish government Premier Juan Negrin has resigned.

Sophie Tucker In Jitter Fest

Sophie Tucker, the nation's "Red Hot Mamma" and blues singer, and Ranny Weeks, Boston's own smooth, polished baritone and orchestra leader, today join the ranks of world-famous stars who will entertain at the greatest dance and music jamboree in New England history.

Sophie, perennial bloom of Broadway, and featured headliner in Vinton Freedley's newest musical comedy "Leave It To Me," which opens at the Shubert Theater next Monday evening, will perform with song and story during the Benny Goodman-Rudy Vallee classic "Swing vs. Straight" at Boston Garden, Monday, October 24.

Ranny, master musician and son of former Mayor William E. Weeks of Everett, has just returned from Hollywood movie triumphs and will act in the role of master of ceremonies in the Garden festival.

COLORFUL TOUCH

These two illustrious names in the world of entertainment add a colorful touch to a program replete with personages.

With "Killer-Diller" Goodman and his "Cats" hitting their licks with barrel-house jiving sessions, with Rudy's Connecticut Yankees making it sweet and melodious, with Buddy Clark of "Hit Parade" fame adding his throaty crooning to Vallee's, with New England's most rabid jitterbugs and alligators shagging and stompin' at their dizziest, and with any number of other brilliant personalities preparing to shoot the works at the Garden, this Boston American Christmas Basket Fund charity show will hit a sure-fire superlative note before the last gun is fired in the early Tuesday morning hours.

Miss Tucker, who will admit to only 50 summers, has more than a bit of sentimental interest in Boston. She grew up at 22 Salem street in the North End and she will be making her Garden appearance only a stone's throw away.

VERSATILE LADY

For more than 31 years she has been the versatile lady of song and speech, entertaining audiences in theater, vaudeville, night clubs, movies and radio.

Affectionately known as "The Last of the Rad Hot Mammas," Miss Tucker will render some of the newest and best Cole Porter tunes which feature "Leave It To Me," a sure hit which is making its Metropolitan debut in this city.

It is only fitting and proper that Ranny Weeks act as master of ceremonies in a show headlined by Rudy Vallee. For it was the great Rudy, disciple of straight music, who arranged it for Ranny to enter Hollywood's pictures and the latter considers himself one of Vallee's proteges.

Ranny, always popular in Boston, held the endurance record at the Metropolitan Theater, 17 full weeks. He later appeared in "It Happened in Paris" and other moving pictures.

The Garden festival will mark his first home town performance since he responded to the hankering for New England's environment.

When it comes to talent for this great musical occasion, Boston has little need of going outside its own limits.

Harry Marshard, Boston society's favorite orchestra leader, now appearing nightly at the Balinese Room of Hotel Somerset, is a Bostonite and will have his band in the Garden ring, countering Goodman's swing and Vallee's straight with his own blend of swing and straight.

JITTERBUG preliminary contest at Roseland Ballroom was won by Anita Harback of Fisherville and Bob Anthony of Framingham. Large field of contestants vied for chance to compete in big finals at Garden Oct. 24 for benefit of Christmas Basket Fund of Boston Evening American.

New Laws Can Curb Nation's Relief Waste

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special To Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—The demand of the people, now sweeping the country, to bring about the immediate separation of politics and relief administration, gains new supporters daily in Congress.

Two things have become evident, to substantiate the view that Congress itself must strike out along bold and original lines, to stem the tide of waste and extravagance which has swept relief appropriations into the astronomical upperbrackets of high finance.

One is the attitude of Washington bureaucracy toward the introduction of economy into relief expenditure, and the open encouragement given to political relief by the bureaucrats.

The other is the belated discovery that, however admirable may be the zeal of the Sheppard campaign funds committee, set up by the Senate at the last session, to inquire into misuse politically of relief money, and to act as a watchdog upon violations of the corrupt practices act, this committee is hamstrung and powerless to cope with the larger aspects of relief administration.

New legislation, as early in the next Congress as possible, has now come to be regarded as absolutely essential.

GET ALL ATTENTION

For five and a half years this is the side of the picture which has received all the attention of the country.

From reports received in Washington, and from members of House and Senate who occasionally drop into the city on business, the drive for taking relief out of politics, and placing it in non-partisan hands, will be coupled in the next Congress with a demand in very high places in both branches of Congress for effective economies in the amounts appropriated for relief.

This view was expressed today, in an interview, by Senator William H. King of Utah, ranking Democratic member of the Senate finance committee, of which Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi is chairman.

Under the present congressional set-up, it is the Senate finance committee, rather than the House ways and means committee, which must be relied upon for the definite fiscal legislation of the next two years.

Hence the views of Chairman Harrison and the Democrat who stands next to him on finance, are significant.

ECONOMY NECESSITY

It is no secret among Senator Harrison's friends, that he favors a far more business-like administration of relief, that he is fully aware of the necessity for economy and a reduction in relief appropriations, and that he believes that in the national interest an improvement in the national finances must be produced by economy, rather than increased taxes.

Senator King's views are similar. He said today:

"The separation of relief and politics is imperative. It has become a serious problem, a real menace. I favor putting relief squarely on the states, and making them responsible.

"To obtain federal aid, a state would be required to set up an effective, efficient, non-political and non-partisan administration.

"When a state lacked the resources to care for its own relief problems, it would certify the fact to the President, and upon ascertaining that the state administration was effective and non-partisan, the President could then allocate certain federal relief funds to that state.

PLAN PREFERABLE

"I think this plan would be preferable to a non-partisan federal board. It would make the states feel their duty and their responsibility.

"I want to get relief out of the hands of the federal government entirely. Something must be done at the next session. The situation is critical."

SEN. WILLIAM H. KING

Sen. Gerry Joins Revolt To Purge Relief of Politics

U. S. Senator Peter G. Gerry, Democrat, of Rhode Island, today headed the revolt in New England against use of relief and welfare funds in electioneering.

Seconding Senator Gerry's proposal were Representatives Charles L. Gifford of Massachusetts and Charles A. Plumley of Vermont.

Plumley declared a non-partisan commission the best solution.

Rep Gifford also recommended a non-partisan commission, with spending to be done, except in "boss-ridden" cities, "under the direction and decision of the local officials."

Senator Gerry's statement follows:

"The expenditures for relief through the various federal projects have been and are becoming more and more involved in partisan politics.

"This is clearly established by the number and nature of the complaints, and the findings of the Senate investigating committee as to what occurred in the recent primaries in various states.

"If allowed to continue it will undermine our government. It is inconceivable how anyone, having at heart the welfare of the nation, should be unwilling to prevent such use of the government relief funds."

Representative Gifford said in part:

"Certainly I would favor a non-partisan commission to be appointed for this purpose if such a commission would be possible under the present appointive power of this administration."

Representative Charles A. Plumley, of Vermont, said:

"The relief program has been debauched in too many instances merely to serve selfish ends and of save the seats of the mighty. Political manipulation of relief funds and the relief army in recent political campaigns is a national disgrace."

"A non-partisaan commission to be effective would eventually have to approve the general plan suggested by and in the Bacon amendment.

"That is a solution."

Miners Paid CIO $360,000

(Copyright 1938)

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 15 (INS)—The CIO reached into John L. Lewis' own union—the United Mine Workers—and pulled out $360,000 between last December 1 and June.

Half of this amount was handed to the CIO as dues, and half as a loan, a report of CIO auditors revealed today. During the same period, the report showed, the mine workers contributed $217,900 to labor's Non-Partisan League, an organization which interested itself in the political fortunes of CIO candidates in summer primaries.

Also the Mine Workers handed over $1,000,000 to the CIO Steel Workers' Organization Committee and $99,00 to its Textile Workers' Organizing Committee.

The auditors' report for the mine workers was made available exclusively to International News service by a high ranking officer in the American Federation of Labor, which just concluded its annual convention here.

The AFL leaders, in addition to adopting a report that said AFL-CIO peace could never be accomplished until John Lewis steps out of the CIO chairmanship, sharply criticized the mine workers for "squandering money" by loaning or contributing it to the CIO.

Madam Perkins Has Plan to End Labor's War

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15 (INS)—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins today urged the embattled American Federation of Labor and Committee for Industrial Reorganization to establish a mediation commission of 13 persons tosettle the quarrels which have beset the labor movement for three years.

A peaceable end to the bitter rift is "intensely" desired by both public and membership of the warring labor factions, Miss Perkins declared, and further is surely needed "if labor is to achieve its proper place of responsibility in the United States."

The labor secretary's proposal came as a surprise and was put forward during a speech she made at the joint celebration of the 70th anniversary of the Order of Railway Conductors.

MEDIATION URGED

Described by Miss Perkins as "a familiar human way of reaching agreements," her plan, if adopted, would have the AFL and the CIO each appoint five "trusted and experienced" representatives to the mediation commission.

"Let these te nmeet and agree upon three additional members chosen outside either of the two groups in conflict," said Miss Perkins. "Let them be disinterested persons, well informed about labor matters and sympathetic to labor organization. Let them be persons of conciliatory, dispassionate disposition, if possible with some experience in the art of mediation.

"Let this committee under the chairmanship of one of the disinterested members proceed to find a settlement."

HAS FAITH IN LABOR

It was the first definite proposition ever made by Miss Perkins for establishing a basis for peace negotiations between the forces of A. F. of L. President William Green and CIO Chairman John L. Lewis, although she has strongly advocated early settlement of the Schism since its inception.

"I have great faith in the capacity of people on both sides of this controversy to make a fair and workable adjustment and the desire for it from the membership and from the public is intense," Miss Perkins said.

Mystery in a Bag Left on Bridge

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 15 (INS)—Police regulated today as to whether the owner of a suitcase found on the Connecticut River bridge was cuicide or just absent minded.

Detective Sergeant Charles J. Keefe said the suitcase contained clothing and a letter addressed to Albert oFurnier, 21, of Chisholm, Me., which indicated he had quarreled with a girl.

Hold Rites Today for Fr. Flood

Monsignor Richard J. Haberlin of Dorchester was celebrant today at a solemn high mass of requiem for the Rev. John J. Flood, parish priest of Saint John the Evangelist Church, Wellesley, who died Wednesday.

Others assisting in the funeral service were the Rev. Eugene A. Twomey of Waban, deacon, and the Rev. William J. O'Connell, Newton, sub-deacon.

CHARLES LITTLEFIELD

Military rites will mark the funeral service tomorrow of Charles J. Littlefield, Arnold circle, Cambridge, veteran of the Spanish-American war, Philippine insurrection and Boxer rebellion.

At 9 a. m. Monday a solemn high mass of requiem will be held at St. Mary's Church, Cambridge. A son, Charles J. Littlefield, Jr., and three daughters, Claire, Ruth and Edna Littlefield, survive.

MISS DOROTHY EYRE

Miss Dorothy Eyre, 31, of Vincent street, East Saugus, for 10 years a Saugus High School teacher, was dead today after a two-months' illness.

She was a graduate of Saugus High School and Boston University. Surviving her are her mother, Mrs. Mary L. Eyre, a sister, Ruth C. Eyre, and grandmother, Mrs. Susan Converse, all of Saugus.

Unionize Ford, CIO Auto Aim

DETROIT, Oct. 15 (AP)—The United Automobile Workers revealed today that it was preparing to intensify its campaign to unionize employes in all plants of the Ford Motor Company.

Ford is the only major automobile company which has not signed a contract with the CIO affiliate.

Back before the 1937 sit-down strikes in the automotive industry, Homer Martin, UAW international president, said the union's ultimate goal was the signing of contracts with all manufacturers of motor cars, parts and accessories.

Take Politics Out of Relief

Citizens, before you vote, ask these questions of all candidates for Congress:

"Do you stand for the principle that there must be no political control or influence in the handling of relief funds, pump-priming money, agricultural benefit money or social security money?

"Do you favor the principle of having all such public expenditures supervised by a non-partisan, non-political board employing civil service personnel?

"Do you pledge yourself to work for the proper measures to put these principles into practical operation?"

Brandeis Sees F. D. R. on Jews

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis, former head of the Zionist Organization of America, called on President Roosevelt last night while additional appeals came to the State Department for the United States to use its influence for continued Jewish immigration to Palestine.

Brandeis spent more than an hour with Roosevelt. He refused to discuss the conversation afterward, but observers regarded it certain he had talked with the President about keeping Palestine open as a national home for Jews.

The aged jurist was understood to be so deeply concerned by the plight of Jewish refugees.

Previously during his 22 years on the Supreme bench he had made it a point to take part in no public activity except court affairs.

When the movement to set up a Jewish national home in Palestine was initiated, Justice Brandeis considered leaving the bench to head it.

New York city's counsel voted to memorialize the President and Secretary of State Hull to inform Great Britain this country hoped immigration would continue. There have been reports that England might cut off Jewish immigration to the country.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (D.) of New York made a telephone appeal to Mr. Roosevelt, and said later he was sure the President would "exert every proper effort to deal with the situation."

The American Jewish Congress called a public meeting for October 30 at New York to consider further action.

Vienna Jews Riot Victims

VIENNA, Oct. 15 (INS)—Vienna mobs of young extremists have diverted their attentions from anti-Catholic demonstrations to riotous onslaughts on Jews.

Several Jews, including one rabbi, were injured by youthful anti-Semitic crowds which invaded the Jewish district, beating persons encountered in the streets.

The demonstrators smashed the windows of several Jewish shops and apartments before police restored order.

The outbreaks occurred less than 24 hours after Reich Commissioner Joseph Buerckel bitterly assailed Theodore Cardinal Innitzer, archbishop of Vienna, in a Nazi speech here. Buerckel also threatened to have Jews driven out of Vienna.

Czechs Capture 300 Hungarians

LONDON, Oct. 15 (INS)—The London News Chronicle stated in a Prague dispatch today that Czech troops and police in Ruthenia surrounded and captured 300 alleged Hungarian terrorists, one of them stated to be the son of the Hungarian Nazi leader, Major Szalasi.

Hungarian troops, said the News Chronicle, were reported to have attacked the Czech railway station at Perbenik, capturing three railway workers and killing a frontier guard.

New Nazi Ban Curbs Practice Of Jew Lawyers

BERLIN, Oct. 15 (AP)—Nazi Germany today followed up a recent ban on Jewish doctors by barring Jews from the practice of law with certain exceptions.

A decree published in the official Gazette bans Jewish attorneys from the bar association in Austria, effective December 31. The ban is effective in the rest of Germany November 30.

Jewish lawyers may continue to serve Jewish clients, according to an interpretation of the decree, however, and judicial authorities will admit Jewish counsel to give legal advice to Jews and to represent them.

The decree provides a temporary exemption for Austrian Jewish attorneys who are war veterans and whose families have resided in Austria for at least 50 years. They will be permitted temporarily to practice in Austria only.

In effect, the decree prevents new Jewish lawyers from being admitted to the bar association in Austria. In the rest of Germany where between 2000 and 3000 Jewish attorneys are affected, war veterans also fall under the ban.

Canton Cut Off By Jap Drive

HONKKONG, Oct. 15 (AP) — Canton was cut off from the coast today except for devious water travel.

Chinese military officials in the south China metropolis, goal of a swift-driving Japanese campaign inland from Bias Bay, acknowledged the highway between Macao and Shekki, in the Chungshan district, had been cut by a Japanese landing party.

Japanese were reported to have made a sudden landing under cover of an intense air bombardment before local defenders could be mobilized.

Reports circulated here of a mysterious Chinese air attack on Japan's fleet in Bias Bay. The extent of damage was not known.

Japanese troops were reported to have captured Waichow, only 70 miles east of Canton, after smashing through more than 80 villages in their new South China drive from Bias Bay.

Deal 'In Pawn' To Communists

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS)—Assailing Communism, Nazism and other "isms," Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R.) of New Jersey, member of the Dies committee on un-American activities, called on American citizens to outlaw "this wave of undemocratic sentiment which has crept into our country."

Speaking over the radio, Thomas declared that "isms," and particularly Communism, have spread through many government agencies, labor unions, colleges, schools, and even churches.

"Communism," he said, "has made its greatest strides in America since the advent of the New Deal. Wittingly or unwittingly, the New Deal master minds have pawned themselves to the Communist strategists. Now they are so far out on the limb, it is practically impossible for them to get back."

Officials Quizzed In New Bedford Sift

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 15—City officials, policemen and representatives of several trucking firms, were questioned today by State Police as the special session of Bristol County grand jury continued its probe of municipal agencies.

County officers said the investigation, started in connection with vice conditions, would extend through next week.

Reich Denies American Threat

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Oct. 15—Germany has no territorial aims in the Americas, it was officially contended today in a stinging criticism of statements made by Bernard Baruch, United States financier.

The foreign office, through its organ, diplomatic correspondence, again linked Baruch to "clique that propagate war," and denied his statement, made on a return from Europe, that the Reich is moving into South America.

A rupture in Brazilian-German diplomatic relations, in which Brazil withdrew its ambassador from the Reich and Germany followed suit, coincided with the foreign office blast.

Germany warned that the war-seekers must be watched by the authoritatian countries and the masses in their own countries.

CITES TRADE INTERESTS

"Germany has always maintained the viewpoint that every country is responsible for its own armaments, and should decide upon that matter for itself," said diplomatic correspondence, commenting on the fact that Baruch told President Roosevelt that America lacked preparedness.

"This, however, does not mean that persons claiming a certain amount of responsibility are entitled to use calumnies as the foundation of aims which are apt to affect the honor of Germany, and which are obviously intended to inflict harm on Germany's interests.

"Of course, Germany has trade interests in the Americas, just as the United States has interests in Europe.

"But just as the United States, as may well be assumed, has no territorial or other imperialistic intentions regarding Europe, the same is the case with Germany regarding the Americas."

Directing its attack straight upon Baruch, the foreign office publication continued:

"Baruch's accusations are along the same lines as the efforts of that clique to propagate war which is to be found in England.

"Those international circles to which Baruch belongs grasp any means, for obvious reasons, either to profit by a new war industry, or to prepare to let loose a war of weltenschaung (world outlook.)

"They not only provoke the sharpest watchfulness of the authoritarian countries, but also require the attention of the masses in their own countries, who do not want to be held responsible for such nefarious aims."

Diplomatic correspondence concluded with the statement that President Roosevelt has not identified himself with Baruch's utterances, or commented on them.

N. E. Business Trend Rises

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

New England business activity is slowly but surely recovering after the hurricane interruption. Retail lines in particular are doing better while manufacturers report better output figures.

Merchants are experiencing a steady expansion of fall apparel sales as well as added buying in other lines. Increased purchases by workmen employed in repairing storm damage are an important factor in the improvement.

A decline in woolen spindle activity was about offset by a gain in worsted spindle operations, and manufacturers and top makers both are reported displaying more interest in the staple, even though volume has been somewhat restricted.

The cotton outlook has improved materially in recent days, due to the sale of substantial yardage and stiffening prices. Employment has gained steadily in mill centers.

With the advent of the "fill-in" order season shoe makers have tapered operations a bit, although new business has been holding up in fairly satisfactory fashion.

Construction operations are holding well and materials are still in active call.

The final touch to this satisfactory New England business picture is given by collections reports. Aided by improvement in transportation and the general upward trend Dun & Bradstreet find collections have been fairly good.

Now that the stock market has given a definite bull market signal it is showing undeniable indications of turning quite selective. Heretofore backward groups and individual stocks appear to have won the support of those either entering the buying side belatedly or, having taken profits in other directions, find themselves with too much cash on hand to feel comfortable.

We would favor the higher cost copper producers and new industry stocks. Copper Range, Consolidated Copper, Inspiration, Waukesha Motors, Hercules and Carrier Corp. all have appeal and have proven in past markets their ability to move with the best.

Boston Wool Trade Active

Trading in fine western grown wools in original bags was fairly active in Boston during the past week, and established further advances in prices.

Graded fine and half-blood territory wools sold more freely than in the previous week at advanced prices, while graded three-eighths and one-quarter blood territory wools moved very slowly with prices showing only a slight strengthening tendency.

Fleece wools were less active than in the previous week, but there was some demand at steady prices ranging on combing bright fleece wools around 29 to 31 cents, in the grease, for fine Delaine and half-bloods and 30 to 32 cents, in the grease, for three-eighths and one-quarter bloods.

Haney Outlines Needs of U. S. Railroads

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—From a reader in Kankakee, Ill., comes the following question:

"What is the outlook for railways? Stuart Chase has stated that they are a dying industry."

ANSWER—The railways are no more a dying industry than most others. If Mr. Chase, who is a sort of half-baked Socialist, sees in the railways a dying industry, he must also recognize that control by the state has failed.

Between 1926 and the time when the carriers took up store-door delivery, and began to make their passenger service cheaper and more attractive, they were losing steadily in competition with trucks and busses. I do not believe this is the case now.

What they now need is financial reorganization and less political control. Neither of these difficulties is inherent in the industry itself.

INFLATION HEDGING

Earlville, N. Y. asks—"In case of inflation or a real bust, would it be better to have one's loans from a bank or an insurance company?"

ANSWER—People who have insurance policies are borrowing on them as a hedge against inflation. They figure that as prices rise, the value of a fixed sum of insurance money decreases; so they borrow money now, on the theory that the debt they owe will also decrease in value. On these assumptions, they gain as borrowing debtors what they lose as policy-holding creditors.

BORROW FROM COMPANY

At present, banks are forced by the large supply of cash deposits to make lower interest rates than insurance companies can do. This is a temporary condition. The time would be likely to come when banks will raise interest rates or call in the loans, or both.

If the insurance company in which the investment in a policy is made were to fail, and the loan hedge had be made at a bank, not only would the loan be called by the bank but also the entire amount of the policy might be lost.

But if the loan comes direct from the insurance company, you can keep the borrowed money as an offset against the loss on the investment in the policy.

I think that probably the safer course is to borrow direct from the insurance company.

"COMMODITY DOLLAR"

Chicago asks—"Why not issue currency against all sorts of staple commodities, just as commercial paper? Isn't it true that the gold standard never is adhered to in a pinch?"

ANSWER—Credit instruments are expressed in terms of some standard money, and unless the standard be very definite and reasonably stable, credit will not function. This is one great trouble today.

Of course, the gold standard has broken down, just as our standards of honor have. So what? Do you propose that we give up, and revert to barbarism?

Anti-Monopoly Probe Needs Technical Skill

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service
Economic Commentator

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Apparently the anti-monopoly committee at Washington is having difficulty getting fully under way. Informed sources surmise the trouble lies in lack of technical skill of the proposed analysts and diagnosticians of business, employed by the committee.

One of the research assistants, for example, asking for views on the economic picture, uses the federal frank to do some propagandizing for his own economic ideas before the fact finding has been undertaken.

I believe the committee should be continued by Congress and provided with sufficient funds. Then it should be forced to blow wide open the whole question of the nature of our economic life in the United States.

It's not a fortnight's hurry-up job to dissect the economic body of the United States, to study the functions of the principal parts and to seek to understand the interrelation of the various parts.

If honest fact-finding is intended, the investigation might blow up some of the glib premises of the New Deal, as well as the orthodox views of dead economists and their literal followers.

The investigation will make front page news out of diagnostic facts about the services of business and the rise of living standards. It will make clear why even relief workers in the United States enjoy greater material well-being than the normally self supporting workers in many other countries of the world.

Out of such an analysis may come a new popular appreciation of the fact that government, even well administered government, is an overhead expense of productive industry, and, contrary to the new style dictators, is not the end-all and the be-all of human activity.

Associated Gas To File Plan

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Associated Gas & Electric system, one of the largest utility systems in the country, has notified the Securities and Exchange Commission it would conform to the commission's request and submit plans for geographic integration and corporate simplifications by December 1.

The system's principal properties are located in six states—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, South Carolina and Florida, and around 80 per cent of its revenue, roughly, is obtained from the properties in the New York-New Jersey-Pennsylvania territory, already centrally located. It has smaller properties in a dozen or so other states and also owns the power system of Manila, P. I.

J. I. Mange, president of the parent company of the system, Associated Gas & Electric system, informed the commission several weeks ago the system was preparing its integration plans.

In utility circles, it was believed the integration line the system would follow would be to concentrate on the Atlantic seaboard, make the New York-New Jersey-Pennsylvania properties its principal system, seek a means of integrating the properties on the southern end of the seaboard to the satisfaction of the SEC, and put the properties in other states up for sale or "swap" with other systems. The Manila system is not in the scope of the 1935 public utility holding company act, the legislation calling for integration.

HOURLY
PLAY-BY-PLAY IN THE STOCK MARKET

The stock market continued to move ahead today under the leadership of utilities and coppers. Trading was fairly brisk as prices climbed from fractions to better than a point.

10-11—The market opened with a rush as utilities and coppers continued in heavy demand. Dealings were large, with many blocks of stock running to 7000 shares showing up frequently. The largest trade was in United Corporation, which also changed hands several times on 2500-share trades. Gains were restricted to large fractions for the most part. Motors continued backward, but steels, rubbers and aviations added to previous closings. The pace slowed somewhat, and the list held generally firm. Over on the Curb Electric Bond opened on 12,500 shares up ½ at 11, a new 1938 high.

* * *

11—The market continued active and firm, but no startling forward progress had been made, despite all the excitement. Gains ran from fractions to a shade more than a point.

Britain Girds For Trade War

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP)—Swift German trade expansion on the heels of Nazi political victories in Central Europe is compelling British industrial leaders to face the necessity of a new economic rearmament within the empire.

A lingering business recession is forcing them to take action to prevent what the more pessimistic observers believe might become a serious collapse.

The business community faced two facts:

1—Britain's already declining foreign trade will suffer still further under Germany's robust gains.

2—There are few signs of an upturn in home business which failed to follow the improvement in the United States after last spring's recession.

The attack on the foreign trade problem covers three fronts.

The first consideration is greater trade—especially reciprocal trade—within the empire. Britain in effect says to her dominions and colonies "if we buy primary products from you then you must buy manufactured goods from us."

On the second front, Britain wants to have other good customers like the United States, Soviet Russia and Argentina buy more British goods under threats of cutting down purchases in those countries.

The third drive is aimed at new markets in competition in many instances with Germany.

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

GLAZERS ARE MEASURING the Ritz Roof . . . Whether this means that the management has decided finally to glass-in the area where Boston society frolics in the summer—under a canopy of canvas—is not certain . . . But Proprietor Ed Wyner went so far today as to admit that he plans to "prolong the season of summer entertainment" . . . Benny Goodman's band and that of Eddie Duchin were among the attractions of the past summer at the Ritz, and if the famous hotel becomes a contender in the year-round supper-room sweepstakes, it will mean serious competition for the other places . . .

George Holland

Although motion-picture money has not figured prominently in backing legitimate shows the past two seasons, this column suspects that Paramount Pictures has a "piece" of "Golden Boy," which will open tomorrow here . . . Frances Farmer, who plays the leading role, has just signed a new contract with Paramount, and the terms virtually were her own . . . She must pass three months only on the West-Coast lot, and gets a sizeable salary for her services . . .

The Flamingo Room will present a new show Monday . . . Bob Hardy's band remains, and cute Peggy Wood, Hardy's former vocalist, has joined Dick McGinley's orchestra as featured singer . . .

Helen Young of Quincy, an attractive blonde bit of home talent, has been signed as the singer for Johnny Long's orchestra . . . The Long unit is playing New England one-nighters, but will go from this vicinity to the Buffalo Hotel Statler for a winter's run . . .

Lord Milford, the English importee of a Boston radio station, was presented a daughter last week. News of his marriage many months ago was not released.

Once Over Lightly:

Retired Chief John J. McBride of the Cambridge police, father of Malcolm McBride, the popular Harvard Square tavern-keeper, and Mrs. McBride will celebrate their 55d wedding anniversary at their home tonight . . .

"If I Were King" broke both attendance and money records for opening day at the Metropolitan. The intake was $7600 . . . Captain Stephen Flaherty (retired from the Boston police force) has arrived home several shades tanner. He journeyed to Los Angeles for the Legion Convention and sauntered back leisurely via motor-car . . .

Eight members of Woody Herman's band, current at the Raymor Ballroom, flew to New York in a chartered plane so that they could end the fourth and final game of the World Series . . .

George C. MacKinnon's song, "Dream Rendezvous," is a singable, catchy tune and music-men think it will be a big-seller . . . The Doucette boys, Louis and Bob, have another Boston product in for the music-world called "Wanderlust," which also looms a hit . . . If Bob Hardy gets a network outlet, he will use "Wanderlust" as his theme song . . .

Vic Jerome, the singer, could not open at the Westminster Blue Room because of a serious cold. Phil Young, manager of the Copley Square, is eager to sign Jerome for his hostelry . . . Al Forrest, the organist, has a prime chance of being a permanent performer at the Latin Quarter . . .

Here's a funny twist to the international motion-picture situation . . . You may have read that many American companies had decided to release no more films for the Italian market, and the reason which was given was that the market was not profitable.

The truth is that Mussolini has ordained that the producers make retakes of all scenes wherein actors are shown shaking hands . . . Il Duce insists that they greet each other with a Fascist salute . . .

Heads of foreign departments of the foremost picture companies will meet in London at the end of the month to see what can be done about it . . . Because another truth is that the Italian market is really profitable . . .

The Franklin policemen will be hosts Monday at their annual ball to be held at Lake Pearl, Wrentham . . . Two orchestras, Anthony Bevi and his "ladies of charm," and Dick McGinley, will stage a "battle of music" . . . That "touch" in a downtown hotel, which cost a porter more than $5000, was a new variation of the swindle known professionally as "the payoff" . . .

The on- and off-again romance of Joan Carroll, the coryphee, and Frank McGrath of Providence, has cooled to a chill . . .

Esther Lyons, the Dorchester dancing teacher, relates that a mother of one of her pupils enrolled the youngster with the remark: "She is backward in putting herself forward."

The Star of the Sea Men's Club will stage their annual dance October 24 at Moorish Castle, Revere . . . In his Sandalwood Herald, the four-page newspaper which Fulton Oursler issues from Falmouth, Fulton has written a vivid account of what happened when the hurricane made Buzzard's Bay a briny inferno . . . It is fascinating reading . . .

In the same journal, there's the story about the drunk who came out of the Savoy Plaza, near Central Park, called a cab and said: "Shay, driver, drive around the park a hundred timesh." On the fifteenth go-round, the drunk pounded on the glass and yelled to the driver, "Step on it buddy, I'm in a hurry" . . .

Cash For You If You Write Winning Caption

Get in on This, Fans! Write A Caption, Win Easy Cash

Would you like to win some easy cash?

Then enter the "Thrill Caption" contest!

There are 38 prizes valued at more than $200 in this new contest sponsored by the Boston Evening American, the Gruen Watch Company and Loew's theaters.

Here is how you can win:

Simply write a caption for the accompanying photograph, a scene from the newest M-G-M picture "Too Hot to Handle," starring Clark Gable and Myrna Loy, now playing at the State and Orpheum.

Write in 30 words or less your "Thrill Caption" on one side of the paper.

Today's photograph is the third in a series of five. The final one will appear next Tuesday. Save all five and mail to the "Thrill Caption" Editor, Boston Evening American.

The new picture, "Too Hot to Handle," is an exciting newsreel of daring men death daily to bring events of the world to the screen.

Following are the prizes: First award, 14 karat gold 17 jewel curvex Gruen wrist watch, valued at $100, duplicate of the one worn by Clark Gable in the picture; second, Gruen watch, 15 jewels, gold filled, costing $50; third, $20 in cash; fourth, $10; fifth and sixth, each $5; seventh, $3, and eighth, $2.

The next five will each receive $1, while the following 25 will each receive a pair of guest theater tickets for Loew's State and Orpheum theaters.

No entry will be accepted bearing postmark later than Wednesday midnight, October 19.

Navy to Repair Cape Cod Canal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—Secretary Woodring allotted $40,000 of War Department funds today for repairs and replacements at the Cape Cod Canal, damaged by the hurricane in Massachusetts.

'Gyp-Proof' Auto Tax Law Urged

Massachusetts motorists will be asked to show a receipted 1938 excise tax when registering a motor vehicle for 1939, if plans of insurance companies are approved.

This was advanced by companies today as a means of curbing fraudulent registrations, now estimated at 15,000 in Massachusetts.

The proposed regulation automatically would prevent fake registrations by those who wish to escape paying high zone rates.

It also would prevent operation by those who wish to hide their identity because they have already been branded as bad insurance risks.

Officials claim it would insure all motorists registering in their true zone and also drive the poor risks from the road.

At the same time, more than 750 motorists today were faced with loss of plates unless they pay up their excise tax within 30 days. That number of motorists have been reported to the registry by cities and towns as the new regulation went into effect.

Fight for Life Of 'Eye Baby'

hours at a time to St. Joseph's Syrian Church and prayed and wept.

Then came the advice of other doctors. Jimmie must have his right eye removed, otherwise he would die.

The cost worried the frantic mother. She knew the expense of such an operation would be tremendous. She had $1000, the family savings, and this she withdrew with the offer:

"Try and save my baby's life. This is all I have but it is yours whether he lives or dies."

Of course, she was told her offer would not be accepted. Medical science was ready to aid so valiant a mother.

KEEP ON PRAYING

Little Jimmie refused to eat hospital food from the day he was taken to City Hospital.

His mother again solved the problem. All of his food she cooked at home and took to him. She stayed at his side for three days while doctors prepared for the operation. Her own meal was a lunch she packed and ate on the hospital steps.

"They tell me not to worry now," the worn mother sighed.

"I'm not going to anymore. I'll just keep on praying."

And Mr. Maloof, he said:

"I'll sell the clothes on my back to help my baby."

A decision to visit a South End clinic was reached. The parents were shocked when they were informed the child was suffering from a tumor in the right eye.

The parents went to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where the original diagnosis was confirmed.

HARD TO BELIEVE

In the same position as the parents of little Helaine Colin, the Chicago child who was found to be suffering the same ailment, Mr. and Mrs. Maloof found it hard to believe the condition of Jimmie could be so serious.

Many who speak but broken English, will have to say, but both Dr. [illegible] the Massachusetts General Hospital and Dr. [illegible] of the Massachusetts General Hospital, City Hospital made [illegible] statement in connection with the operation.

"The right eye was completely filled with this tumor, which is called glioma, and it was blind. The left eye has a similar tumor which involves one-quarter of the interior of the eye.

"The right eye was removed and the left eye will be given X-ray treatment. It is too early to say what the chances are for either sight for the left eye or for life."

Doctors declared it would be several weeks before success or failure of the delicate operation definitely could be known.

COURSE OF TREATMENT

They mapped their treatment as follows:

1—Pathological examination of the tumor and the removed eye.

2—X-ray treatment for the left eye, now one-half covered with a similar malignant growth.

3—Removal of the left eye as a life-saving measure in event it does not respond to treatment.

'Seeing Fingers' Film Treat at South Station

By PEGGY DOYLE

That the blind have their own weekly news magazine and monthly woman's magazine and that they are published locally are some of the little known facts revealed in "The Seeing Fingers," now being shown on the screen of the Hub's popular South Station Theater.

The Seeing Fingers," one of the most unusual short subject films ever shown at South Station screen discovers to the majority of patrons viewing it that many of the books and magazines for the blind are made in South Boston in the Industries building of the Perkins Institute for the Blind.

Most interesting publications are the news magazine and the woman's magazine. The news weekly, second to those available to us, must be made to read by those who have an eyesight not to 32 [illegible]

COWBOY FROM BROKELAND

The Editor Says:

Senator Borah of Idaho wisely opposes suggested changes in the Johnson Act, which closes American money markets to governments in default on World War debts to the United States.

These foreign nations," he truthfully says, "are not making any plans to pay these debts and NEVER INTENDED TO PAY THEM.

Millions of our people will agree with the Senator, particularly those millions who remember that they will be called upon to pay every dollar the obligation-repudiating nations abroad do not pay.

Why should the United States be so stupid AS TO EXTEND FURTHER CREDIT to governments that, by all tests of honor, have REFUSED TO PAY WHAT THEY ALREADY OWE?

What incentive is there for a debtor without honor TO PAY NEW DEBTS?

Let the debtor nations clean up old accounts before they are permitted to start new accounts.

If they want the respect of our people and CREDIT IN THIS COUNTRY, let them qualify FIRST as being deserving of respect and credit.

REPRESENTATIVE PATMAN of Texas is a disappointed man if he hoped to receive the support of labor for his bill designed to put chain stores out of business.

There were no orchids for the Patman proposal when the American Federation of Labor convened in the Congressman's home state.

Instead the Federation, through the official report of its Legislative Committee, called Mr. Patman's plan "DISCRIMINATORY AND PUNITIVE" and denounced it as an attempt to put three hundred thousand workers out of jobs.

Chain store operation results in lower prices of the necessities of life," the Committee said. "If these prices are the result of the exploitation of labor the remedy lies through the vigorous and successful campaign now going on for their unionization.

The Patman Bill runs in DIRECT OPPOSITION to the entire trend of modern industrial development and of established policy on the part of the public and of organized labor."

Obviously, labor does not share the political belief that the way to improve a tree is to chop it down.

HIS AMAZING SUCCESS in reaching millions of readers with a daily message of good humor and good will distinguished B. C. Segar, creator of "POPEYE," whose untimely death at the age of 44 occurred Thursday.

Segar's comedian though POPEYE undoubtedly is, he is a proponent of a rich philosophy and good morals as well as of good fun.

And of course the philosophy of the comic strip character the public knows as POPEYE was the philosophy of, and a reflection of, the character of Mr. Segar.

The ability to make a cartoon character LIVE is possessed by few artists in the degree achieved by Mr. Segar. No one who follows the daily antics of the lovable POPEYE in the Hearst newspapers and hundreds of other newspapers throughout the world and on the motion picture screen as well, has any doubt that the one-eyed sailor is REAL.

Mr. Segar's death deprives the newspaper field of a beloved artist. But because he made his characters LIVING BEINGS in the minds of so many people they will LIVE AFTER HIM.

Mr. Segar had been ill for many weeks, and his series has been drawn during that long period by a successor of his selection, who will continue Mr. Segar's great work.

Hitler Aides Get Plums

By EDWIN C. HILL

Copyright 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.

WHEN HITLER grabbed Austria, his home-talent agitators, faithful hard-working, journeyman hell-raisers for years on end in for said disillusionment.

Instead of upping these fellows to the soft jobs and high positions of pelf and power he brought in his own strong-arm squads from Germany, and many an illustrious disturber became just a warmed-over pickle.

Big, beefy, ostentatiously red-blooded Joseph Buerckel, a rank outsider from the Saar Valley, took charge and dealt the patronage to imported German Nazis. It is said that the Austrian Nazis are as sore as Donald Duck but they don't dare squawk.

IT WILL BE interesting to see what happens to Konrad Henlein who, from the day Hitler gained power, was Berlin's ace agitator in prying the Sudetenland from Czechoslovakia. Indications so far are that he is still featured in the billing and may be kept on the job.

It has been suggested that Czechoslovakia may be somewhat harder to digest than Austria, and when you get right down to brass knuckles the bulky and rocky-jawed Herr Henlein looks as tough as any of Herr Hitler's Berlin operators.

CYNICAL isolationists have said that this country spent $200,000,000,000 and many thousands of lives on Europe's war, and loaned them $11,000,000,000 and got nothing out of it. We challenge this willful falsification. It is an obvious, proven and indisputable fact that millions of Americans can now spell Czechoslovakia while 20 years ago probably only Nicholas Murray Butler could qualify on this test. We live and learn—and pay as we go.

WHEN the ancient Greeks discovered a good guesser they gave him a full-time job as a prophet. The League of Nations—if any when this lands in the paper—couldn't do better than to set up old Premier J. B. M. Hertzog of South Africa as a war and weather forecaster.

He alone among all statesmen of the post-war years has called the turn on every major world crisis well in advance of its happening. He is 73 years old, thin, bespectacled, with steely blue eyes and a scraggly gray mustache.

The ink wasn't dry on the Treaty of Versailles before he was croaking that it would wreck the world. "When war comes," he said, "this cursed treaty will be responsible."

His repeated warnings of danger have seemed as irrelevant as the backfire of an automobile, until you look into them and until you check up on his prophecies. In September, 1929, South Africa was enjoying great prosperity. Just off-hand old Mr. Hertzog yelled for everybody to hunt a cyclone cellar. He said the American stock market was going to blow up within a month.

In September, 1935, he spotted up the three years ahead like a pool player calling his shots. He said: "The world is beginning the bloodiest and cruelest period it has ever known," and he detailed his observation with astonishing accuracy.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

BUFFALO is located on Lake Erie right where latitude crosses longitude at an acute angle. It was first discovered by Griffin, who sailed by without stopping on August 7, 1679. This gratuitous and exploratory insult held Buffalo back more than a century. It wasn't until 1789 that Cornelius Winne built the first house. Buffalo was called New Amsterdam by the Holland Land Company and its creek made a port of entry March 3, 1805.

BUFFALO was incorporated as a town in 1810 and Black Rock made a port of entry. Drummond and his wildmen burned Buffalo to the grass roots on December 30, 1813, after most of General Hall's gallant militia had heard Dixie calling them.

THINGS now happen fast and furious. The city got gas light November 7, 1848. The first horse-car catapulted up Main street on June 11, 1860. Fast living like that brought its penalties and the cornerstone for an insane asylum was laid in 1872. Admission was by invitation only. Main street was lighted by electricity on July 1, 1882. A few years later the president of a bank embezzled $500,000 and Buffalo was regarded as a large city.

Men and Moths Love Old Clothes

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright 1938, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.

MEN ARE MUCH more given to the accumulation of junk in the form of old and useless personal belongings than women, and we will tell you why. It is partly because men are more sentimental about their old things than women and partly because the gents are more miserly than the ladies.

A man hoards old clothes, old shoes, old hats, old neckties, old canes, old fishing tackle, and other ancient gear with jealous care. We think that in the beginning there is in the back of his mind the idea that he may come upon evil times and need that stuff, but though the years pass and the need never develops but even grows more remote he still clings to the junk.

You look into the average man's closet and we guarantee that you will find more old stuff that he will never use again than you will ever find in the average woman's clothes cupboard.

THE WOMAN who can afford to do so generally gets rid of her old dresses and old shoes, and old hats just as quickly as possible and replaces them with new accoutrements. It is a good thing we have women, because merchants would starve to death depending on some men.

The average man will resist to the death any attempt of the good wife to deprive him of his accumulated truck. She will come up with a pair of old shoes that he has not as much as seen for years and suggest that they ought to be given away and his howls of protest can be heard a block off.

As we say, it is partly sentiment. Probably the old things possess a nostalgic touch to him of times that he likes to dwell upon in his memory, when he happens to think of them, and he thinks of them only when he sees the old things. However we cannot help remembering that female misers are rare, and that those odd old characters you find in every town living in patched up shacks that fairly bulge with all manner of junk collected out of ash cans and off city dumps, are almost invariably men.

THE AVERAGE man saves old photographs until he cannot remember the names of the subjects, and old letters and old newspaper clippings and old magazines and old badges of conventions and festivals. He keeps night club souvenirs, old menu cards and stubs of pencils and fountain pens that are busted beyond repair and traveling bags too worn and disreputable for further use.

The average woman if she could afford it would replace her every possession once a year, especially clothes and hurl away all the old stuff except of course her wedding dress and the last despairing note she got from the other fellow—the one she did not marry.

She can read this once in awhile in later years and reflect sadly that maybe he would not have turned out to be the kind of a fellow who saves up old moose heads, old stuffed fish, old tennis racquets, old autographed baseballs, old golf clubs, old hunting coats, old college pennants and old rubbers.

[illegible] Terry Williams' fashion shop. Nowhere is such fervor of elegance brought to fewer and dissipated down the boulevards and if Clare Boothe is ever moved to do a men's version of her epic "The Women," Tony's fitting rooms rate a scene in it along with the Squibb Building barber shop and the locker room at the Athletic Club.

Tony makes clothes for any number of the more gilded youths of the boulevards under a very Bond Street trade name which he thought up all by himself one day while chewing a meatless veal loaf at the Vital Interest Health Food Restaurant (Tony being diet-minded and living for months on nothing but apple parings and bran). His clientele includes Paul Draper, Frank Chapman, Jerry Zerbe, Paul Plato, C. D. Jackson, Roy Larsen, Bill Plankington, Bill Kemper, of Kansas City; Howard Dietz, Freddy Payne, A. K. Mills and Enzo Fiermonte, when the latter is in the chips, which isn't just now. And, while Mr. Bassie does the fittings and Mr. Williams attempts to sell his customers on rat-catcher patterns, Inverness cloaks and Wellington dinner trousers, more gab of dubious authenticity floats around the atmosphere than one could find in a week of New York gossip columns. Tales of death and divorce and division, of infidelities and impossible romance, are the order of the day.

THE REPORTED banishment for the rest of the season from Morocco of Frank Shields because of that unfortunate fist fight brings up the problem of just what is the proper conduct for an exile from Perona's premises, where frequent personal appearance is too dire a social necessity to be trifled with.

It has occurred before and may happen again and some precedent of behavior should be established. Should the banishee at once go home and shoot himself? Should he shoot Mr. Perona? North Shore Dance for Betsy Chalifoux

BETSY CHALIFOUX makes her bow to her family's North Shore friends this evening at a dance given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Chalifoux at Willowbank, their home in Beverly . . . and though the party takes place in an especially erected pavilion lined with flesh pink satin, it will not be as large or elaborate an affair as her formal debut dance to be given early in December at the Somerset by her grandmother, Mrs. Albert Cameron Burrage . . .

Pink roses, grown on the Chalifoux and Burrage estates, will decorate the pavilion and form an harmonious background for Betsy's gown of white tulle traced with silver, with which she is carrying a small corsage of white orchids . . . Blue and silver lame fashions the gown in which Mrs. Chalifoux will receive . . .

Preceding the dance the ushers and out-of-town guests will be entertained at dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Chalifoux . . . The debutante's brother, Francis Chalifoux, heads the usher corps with the assistance of George Aldrich, E. Laurence White, Loring Reed, William Vaughan, Russell Burrage, Jr., Robert Gannett, Charles Meyer, Ralph Pope, Jr., Elliott Bacon, R. Bennett Forbes, Bartow Kelley, Francis Lawrence and George Von L. Meyer, 3d . . . Many of Betsy's classmates at Foxcroft School have come on to attend the party . . .

Rosamond Higgins Makes Bow Tonight

NO MATTER how they make out in their gridiron battle against Harvard this afternoon, the West Point Cadets, in their impressive uniforms, will win a victory at the tea dance which Mrs. Wilbur Higgins is giving to present her daughter, Rosamond . . . Though Mrs. Higgins has invited a number of the soldier boys, she also knows of more who are planning to come anyway and she hasn't the heart to limit the number because the girls are all excited about the opportunity of dancing with the uniformed guests . . .

Rosamond receives her guests in a filmy gown of pink tulle with a basque bodice of pink lame and she is carrying a muff of white gardenias . . . Mrs. Higgins is wearing red velvet to blend with the autumn colorings of the decorations she has selected for the house . . .

Eleanor Roosevelt, who will be presented by her cousins, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House during the Christmas holidays, is taking her turn with the pourers, along with Natalie Coolidge, Dorothy Coffin, Dolly Ogilby and a number of other debs already announced . . .

Regina Beaudreau Becomes Bride

At high noon today, Regina Beaudreau, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Raoul H. Beaudreau of Belmont, became the bride of John Shea Flynn of Providence, R. I. The ceremony, performed in Notre Dame de Pitie Church in North Cambridge, was followed by a reception in Belmont Country Club.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father chose a gown of antique ivory satin made an empire lines with a long court train. Her tulle veil fell from a pearl cap of the same material. She carried a white prayer book with orchids and lilies of the valley for markers.

Her sister Marianne, Mrs. Alvin G. Dell came on from Springfield, Pa. to serve as matron of honor. Her quaint dress of copper moire was worn with a matching pan cake hat and a bouquet of variegated chrysanthemums.

Gowned alike in frocks of gold satin and copper moire was the quartet of attendants. All carried colorful clusters of fall flowers. Preceding the bride altarward were Anne and Cappy Ryan of Chestnut Hill, Mary Frances Murphy of Marlboro, Catherine Tucker of Providence, Thelma Wilhemey of Marlboro and Eleanor Grady of Medford.

The bridegroom's brother, Robert served as best man.

Assisting the couple in receiving were the bride's mother, Mrs. Raoul Beaudreau, whose gladiolus dress and brown accessories were topped with orchids, and Mrs. Thomas Flynn, mother of the bridegroom who chose burgundy velvet and matching orchids.

Junior Leaguers Discuss Play

Grease paint, cues and costumes will be the chief topics of conversation Monday at the Junior League when the Junior Players inaugurate their new season with a luncheon meeting in the ballroom. Plans will be discussed for the Christmas production of "Cinderella."

Miss Sarah Bradlee, who has not only been the leading lady in a number of Junior League productions, but also has coached several plays, is chairman of the players this year.

Philomatheia Seniors' Bridge Wednesday

Senior Philomatheia inaugurates its weekly Wednesday afternoon bridge series next week under the capable chairmanship of Mrs. Walter J. Burns of Belmont.

Mrs. B. J. Ahearn of Chestnut Hill be hostess at next Wednesday's party with Mrs. William J. Bannan of Waltham assuming responsibility for the second on October 2.

'Le Salon Mexico' Scores Hit Here

By RUTH MARSTERS
(Music Editor)

The vivifying influence of modernist Aaron Copland's personality found ready response at yesterday afternoon's Boston Symphony concert when "Le Salon Mexico" was performed for the first time hereabouts under Serge Koussevitzky's baton.

Unlike many of his confreres, Copland is neither effete nor flamboyant. Not only does his skill as a technician enable him to manipulate various idioms to his own individualized ends, but he is as serious as he is clever.

Which, of course, is something else again. It does not matter greatly whether he chooses the language of Stravinsky, of Schoenberg, of jazz, or of Mexico, he always manages to have something to say, and even to effervesce a little about.

"Le Salon Mexico" is wholly atmospheric. It is also most definitely effective, and the audience, stimulated a little further, no doubt, by the composer's presence, was appreciative.

FALLS SHORT

The Mozart Divertimento in B flat major, which opened the program, did not fare as well as Mozart works are apt to at these concerts.

(Dr. Koussevitzky usually conducts Mozart as though he were walking a golden tight rope straight into heaven and the orchestra usually follows in what appears blissful preoccupation.)

But yesterday the string tone seemed less silvered, the continuity less inevitable.

The work is lesser Mozart to be sure—a product of Mozart's tender years and evidently written for an occasion which would show off his own virtuosity as a violinist. Even so.

MOST POPULAR

The Dvorak "New World Symphony" with which Dr. Koussevitzky brought the program to a close, however, was superbly played, conductor and orchestra being greatly in the vein.

This Symphony is deservedly one of the most popular in symphonic literature, in our opinion. Strange to think of Dvorak tracing such poetry with one hand and with the other making constant inroads on forever replenished supplies of beer and bologna.

Another instance of the necessity of divorcing the man from the artist?

Serve Steak With Sauce Of Roquefort

By MARTHA LEE

Roquefort cheese, "the King of all cheeses" makes its debut now in a new American garb, right here in our own democracy. What is claimed to be the first successful commercial method of making Roquefort cheese in this country has been developed at Iowa State college, and a patent has been granted for it.

To the epicure the selection of cheese is as important as discrimination among vintages of various wines. Most Americans are fairly indifferent in the matter of cheese, and it is only within recent years that the cheese production in this country has begun to grow more versatile.

How well do you know your cheeses? Their story and manufacture are as fascinating a page in food lore as you will ever find. The [illegible] with [illegible] is [illegible] flavor [illegible] and [illegible] which forms the basis of this cheese.

In France where the process originated the cheese is stored in caves under controlled temperature. The curing process is from nine to 12 months, and for a long time manufacture was limited to only three areas in France where the ripening caves are located.

In this latest American process ripening time is reduced to from two to four months, the formation of the green-blue mold taking place more rapidly.

With the perfection of the most prized of all cheeses accomplished within our own shores, it is to be hoped that its use will spread. We believe that American food tastes are gradually becoming more sophisticated. In its true meaning, "sophisticated" implies both knowledge and experience. Knowledge of the many possible uses of Roquefort cheese and experience with it in food, will surely convert the most reluctant of consumers.

While it is a superb dessert, particularly when served with a firm tart fruit like pears or apples, Roquefort has many an interesting function in cookery.

To give an extra spiciness and deliciousness to your roast, try flavoring it with Roquefort cheese. About half an hour before removing the meat from the oven, insert crumbled Roquefort in slits which have been previously made in the roast. Baked ham and lamb also take kindly to this treatment.

STEAK WITH ROQUEFORT SAUCE

Porterhouse sirloin or club steak, cut 1 to 2 inches thick
2 ounces Roquefort cheese
Few drops of Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons cream
Salt and pepper

Broil steak in very hot oven (500 deg. F.) placing the rack so there is a distance of about three inches between the top of the steak and the flame.

Turn only once. Mash the cheese with the cream and the Worcestershire sauce, and when the second side of the steak is nicely browned, spread it with the cheese sauce. Return to broiling oven just long enough to melt the cheese; then place on a hot platter and serve immediately.

PORK CHOPS A LA ROQUEFORT

Pork chops
Lemon juice
Roquefort cheese
Salt and pepper

Brown the chops lightly on both sides. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and lay in a baking dish. Over each chop pour a tablespoon of lemon juice and then an even, thin coating of crumbled Roquefort cheese. Cover the casserole and place in a moderate oven (350-375 deg. C.) for 45 minutes.

ROQUEFORT DRESSING

1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. dry mustard
½ tsp. paprika
1 tsp. sugar
3 tbsp. onion juice
2 tbsp. vinegar
½ cup salad oil
2 ounces crumbled Roquefort cheese

Mix dry ingredients and add to onion juice, vinegar and oil. Mix well. Add cheese and beat well with a fork.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

New Perfume Stirs Romantic Response

MYSTERY of allure symbolized in fragrance . . . the sort of perfume to complement the richness of this winter's personality and fashions . . . so well typified by Leila Marr . . . is Arline Gould's discovery-of-the-week, described today.

By ARLINE GOULD

IF you'd embark on strange quests for extraordinary things . . . if you're really a female Marco Polo at heart . . . and you grasp at anything that removes, if but for a little while, the fetters of ordinary living . . . there's a new perfume that's an experience all in itself.

People have flippantly called it "the worldly fragrance with a naughty name." And that's true enough. Its name is suggestive, naughty. It is bruited about that in it is a secret, unique ingredient which compels romantic attention.

Anyhow, it is so thoroughly unusual that it will rate "heads up" wherever it trails its tantalizing robe of fragrance.

We don't want to swear that you will net yourself any man on whom you cast a glance, if you wear this perfume. But there is said to be as much possibility for such fine allure through the eager sense of smell as there is in the measuring sense of sight. And you never can tell. You never can tell. Until you try.

These are the creator's own words—that the stuff has a "sensuous, glamorous quality that will complement the same feeling in current fashion, the return of the 'Mauve Decade,' when a disarming demureness is spiced with wicked allure." Sounds good, yes?

They tell me that in its original bottle it was a high and mighty price, so much so that we ordinary mortals would have had to pass it by. New York dithered about it. And now you may try it in a small phial for something over a dollar.

To learn all about this romance inspiring new perfume, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week days until five-thirty, or write her at the Boston Evening American enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How to Address Widow

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly advise me the correct way to address a widow, whether as Mrs. John Jones, or Mrs Mary Jones? ..READER..

A widow's name is exactly what it was when her husband was living. Mrs. John Jones. This is the form of name we should use when we address a letter to her, the name she should use on her visiting-card, in her telephone listing, in any social list, and so forth.

The important thing to remember is that in the formal name of a married woman, a widow, a divorcee, the first name should not be used; that is, the first name is not used prefixed with Mrs. A married woman's name is Mrs. John Jones. A widow's name is Mrs. John Jones. A divorced woman should properly use her maiden surname prefixed to her married surname: Mrs. Robinson Jones.

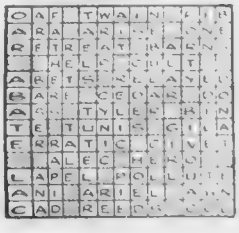
YESTERDAY'S ANSWERS



BOSTON CRIME REPORTER by FRED MAC ISAAC

Accused Youth Admits Love for 'Other Girl'

What Has Happened:

Addison Francis Murphy, enterprising young reporter, solves the mysterious murder of Dolores Vanini, beautiful model. He finds Quentin Robbins, young society man, in prison facing certain conviction for the crime. Miss Phyllis May, Robbins' fiancee, promises assistance.

Murphy discovers that a mysterious man occupied the apartment across the alley from the slain girl's. Following the discovery, a lawyer notorious for underworld connections offers Murphy a $5000 bribe to leave town. When he refuses, he is pursued by hired killers in an automobile.

In today's chapter, Murphy floors a man who had been listening to his conversation with Phyllis May.

Now Continue:

CHAPTER SIX

Certain names and addresses in this story are fictitious, and refer to actual persons or places in no way.

Reporter Murphy threw open the door, stepped back into the hall and almost collided with a blond man upon whose face was an expression of astonishment and consternation.

"You would eavesdrop, would you?" remarked the newspaperman and drove a wicked right at the point of the fellow's jaw. The victim had no chance to cover. The blow went home and the man went down and out.

Murphy lit out of the building, leaped into the cab and ordered it to drive to Dock square.

At Dock square he telephoned Phyllis May and shifted to another cab, which took him to the county jail.

Attorney Brady was waiting for Murphy and Miss May in the sheriff's office and a deputy immediately started to conduct the prisoner to a small cell, which the attorney had readily agreed to place at the disposal of the attorney.

"I was afraid we'd have to talk to him through the bars," remarked the lawyer.

He was under indictment, and the sheriff is a friend of mine. I expect to be present at this interview. The cell door, the cell door.

"Gentlemen, you may be pressed for time. We'll work together. Did he tell you about seeing me?"

No. He said if you had learned anything you would like to have a talk with me."

"I'll send the deputy."

The jailer left Quentin Robbins and his cell. The door was locked. The deputy departed.

THE PRISONER!

The prisoner was a young man of prepossessing appearance. His hair was dark and curly, a clear complexion, regular features and a well-knit figure.

Miss May rushed to the bars and with tears

"Quentin, dear, I've begged Mr. Murphy to help you. In fact, he has promised to help. I'm going to leave you to talk. I don't care what you say. I'll love you just the same."

Robbins smiled and gazed through the bars at Miss May, who disappeared. Phyllis and Murphy and Brady were waiting for him when he returned to the corridor.

"Mr. Murphy, I'm very grateful that you have agreed to help us," said the prisoner.

He spoke very agreeably, for a prisoner, and Murphy decided that Robbins was a handsome fellow. He wondered why the girl had fallen for him.

"We haven't much time," stated Murphy, "we must come directly to the point; why did Miss Vanini accuse you of shooting her?"

"I don't know."

"Who haven't you given your lawyer information which will help him. Do you want to be tried for murder?" Murphy

I don't want my fiancee dragged into this."

Murphy was becoming impatient.

"She can't be dragged in. I've seen you and talked to Vanini. When did you paint it?"

"A year ago in Paris."

"WE WERE FRIENDS"

You were having an affair with her in Paris weren't you?"

We were friends, admitted Robbins.

And your friendship continued when you came to Boston?"

No. We spoke in Paris.

She followed you to Boston then?"

She came here.

And you resumed your friendship.

No. I didn't know she was in Boston. I learned by accident a week or two after the tragedy.

You were in the apartment with Miss Vanini when she was murdered.

I protest to be permitted to answer anything which may incriminate me. I have already told you.

Did you kill her?

Of course not.

Do you know who did?

I have no idea.

Will you tell me what you were doing in the apartment?

I refuse to answer that question.

Murphy scanned the prisoner's face for a moment. Robbins was very calm, very composed, very much at ease.

"Mr. Robbins, I'm going to be frank with you. I'm convinced that you are innocent. I believe you are shielding someone. I'm going to ask you a question. Did you kill Dolores Vanini?"

No.

Did you see her after you left her apartment?

No.

Did you see her before you left her apartment?

No.

Did you see her at all that night?

No.

Did you see her the night before?

No.

Did you see her the night before that?

New Plan for World Series | Gives All Clubs Chance to Play

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston

BASEBALL IS the one sport that can still manage to pop its way out front even with a powerful Army eleven battling Harvard in the Stadium, with thousands of people journeying to Narragansett Park to attend the races, and with other thousands interested in various college and schoolboy football clashes as well as in dog racing.

I was studying the last minute information on the Army-Harvard game when "Tex" Wheeler, one of the news editors who sits on the rim of the copy desk editing stories on international and national affairs, dropped over to the sports department with a new idea about World Series games.

"Tex" had his plan set up in column form. After reading it, I decided there was enough interest in it to pass it along to you. Here it is:

"Sure, I took the Cubs. So what?" insisted the Old-Time Fan. "If they'd played against those Yankees like they played against the Pirates, the series would've been more than mere batting practice and betting profits for New York and jitters and gloom for Chicago. But, that's just another if."

The Old-Time Fan lit a cigarette, inhaled a couple of puffs, exhaling the smoke in great funnels.

"But, what I wanted to tell you about is, I got an idea.

"I got an idea," he went on, tapping my knee and leaning back in his chair. "I figgered out a way to make money for every big league club, even the Browns and Phillies."

My face must have registered my disbelief.

"Yes, I have," he declared. "And it won't cost anybody anything that is, except the losers of bets.

"Why not have a World Series in every major league city, even Brooklyn? Why not have EIGHT World Series?"

Oh, elimination, like the hockey—"

* * *

Battle Royal of Baseball Clubs

"NAW, NOT LIKE any hockey or football or pingpong," ejaculated the O. T. F. in disgust. "Baseball . . . That's what I'm talking about. Baseball, see? I figgered it out. A sort o' battle royal on baseball between sixteen big league clubs, a grand and glorious carnival of baseball."

His eyes gleamed, his face actually shone, and it wasn't all perspiration, either.

I manifested interest, and he continued to my inquiry:

"Why, here's how, all so simple. Let the two pennant-winners play as they do now. But, have the second-place teams in each league play each other, too, and the third-place teams, the fourth, and so on down the line, even the tail-ender in the National League playing a World Series with the tail-ender in the American League — possibly to see which is worse!

"Of course," he went on, "some cities—Boston, New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Chicago—would have two World Series because they got two big league clubs—that is, they'd have two unless their clubs finished in the same position in the leagues, in which case they'd play one another—but Washington, Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Cleveland, they'd have only one. But THEY'D ALL HAVE ONE. Now, 14 clubs and nine cities didn't have any World Series this year. Of course, Chicago didn't either, but they thought for a while they were having a series, and that's the same, almost, as having one. Some years, when the Giants are furnishing the batting practice for the Yanks, then ten big league cities don't have any World Series.

"Under my plan, eleven cities would have their share of World Series pickings—and the players on all 16 clubs would cut in on the money.

* * *

Advertising Campaign Would Help

"IMAGINE HOW they'd pack 'em in if the ads in the papers read this way: 'World Series TODAY (2nd place) Red Sox vs. Pirates!' or Giants vs. Indians or Reds vs. Tigers or Bees vs. Senators, and so on.

"Boy, I got somethin' there, if you sporting editors only got sense enough to see it! Why, think what it'd mean just to radio announcers and official scorers alone not to mention anybody else, to have all those World Series—EIGHT o' 'em!—to describe and figger on!

"More work for the umpires, lotsa o' gold for the players. Bulgin' coffers—I don't mean coffins, either!—for the moguls. More baseball extras, home town extras, too, for you newspaper fellers. Say, I got somethin' there. Why, I think both the Red Sox and the Bees ought to give me a season pass, a life-time one, just for suggestin' it, don't you?"

He reached for another from my dwindling pack of cigarettes. Got it to going.

"Say," he said. "Go ahead and write it up, and let's see what they do about it."

And he went his way. But, I've taken his advice. So what?

Thanks, Tex!

Boston Lost to Crimson

Third In Row

Defeat looms for Harvard again today as it tackles Army at Stadium. Here's Joe Gardella, one of Harvard's younger backs, who may figure prominently in game. Insets are Army captain Jim Schwenk, Harvard captain Bob Green.

Boston Evening American Photos

By WILL CONNELL

Thunder and lightning played round and about town today as the gray West Point ranks swept into Boston's street and hearts.

It was thunder of 90 men's marching feet and lightning of a dazzling Cadet football attack hovering over the Stadium gridiron, as sedate Dame Boston suddenly went a bit soldier daft.

"Harvard against Army" summed up the thrilling story, and close to 50,000 persons gathered up coats and blankets and umbrellas, too, for the trip to the concrete sports clock.

VETERAN BACKFIELD

Pictured early in the week as a West Point romp, odds had strangely tightened from 10—4 to 5—3 this morning as the whisper skipped here and there that Harvard was fighting mad after two beatings and planned to upset the prophets.

Each team was minus only one man, a back, but the Crimson's loss was Chief Boston, Team A veteran blocking back. This was more damaging than Army's missing Wally Lauterback, big ball carrier just up from the plebes.

Also, Army had its thoroughly seasoned backfield of Captain Jim Schwenk, Art Francezak, Huey Long and Woody Wilson ready to start, a group capable of playing 60-minute football if need be.

Dick Harlow had a new back field unit with great possibilities in Hack Wilson, Frank Foley, Tod Macdonald and Ben Smith, with Macdonald faster than any Cadet back, and only Foley giving away [illegible].

CRIMSON HAS CHANCE

The lines were fairly even in [illegible], too, with Army showing a [illegible]-pound edge per man. Captain Ell Wood, Army coach, gave the [illegible] berth to a Third Class man, [illegible] Gillis, who ousted two experienced foes for the job this week.

Recalling that Cornell beat Harvard only on long runs, and that the Crimson frontier showed a fine charge and a world of courage against the Beef Trust opponent, you had to give Harvard a reasonably even chance, looking at the line.

Captain Bob Green and Don Daughters on the wings, Tom Healey and Ken Booth at tackles, Nick Mellen and Dave Glueck at guards and Tim Russell at center waited the whistle for the Crimson.

Riggs Sullivan and Frank Yeager, 180 and 190 pounds, seemed better equipped to handle the Harvard tackles than did the lighter Daughters and Green, against Army's Harry Stella and Jim Lotozo, 210 and 200, in order.

Bob Little and Mel Engstrom,

Brown Bears Stalk Dartmouth Indians

By BILL GRIMES

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 15—Before the largest crowd that has ever attended a game here, Dartmouth and Brown will clash this afternoon at Memorial Field in the 29th game of their series.

[illegible] the fact that safe is the [illegible] way to reach here [illegible] town [illegible] been packed to the limit [illegible]

A steady stream of automobiles and buses from all directions started [illegible] this morning. Hundreds of cars are [illegible] parked in the cut lots and [illegible] now it looks as though it will be late tonight before the traffic jam will be broken.

Dartmouth and Brown are undefeated and untied entering today's game. The Big Green opened with two soft touches, Bates and St. Lawrence, and therefore wasn't very impressive offensively during the first half of the Princeton game. But between the halves, apparently Coach Blaik snapped the Indians out of the trance and they came through with a 22 to 0 victory.

GREEN FAVORITE

The Big Green is the favorite to beat the Brunonians. The Indians are reported to be one of the best clubs in the East, but to date they haven't done anything to warrant such honors.

Brown has met and defeated two major opponents. The Bears started off with a clean cut victory over Harvard and then stopped Lafayette, an undefeated eleven a year ago.

In the Harvard Stadium Brown showed that it is a very smart and alert aggregation. Unfortunately for the Brunonians, Captain Larry Atwell and "Bones" Stepczyk are not ready for 60 minutes of the type of football that Dartmouth will uncork this afternoon. Atwell will be in the starting lineup, but Coach Tuss McLaughry stated this morning that he hadn't the slightest idea how long his captain will be able to remain under fire.

GREEN BACKS STRONG

Dartmouth will rely upon a backfield which is loaded with dynamite. In Capt. Bob MacLeod, Bill Hutchinson, Colby Howe and Sandy Courter, MacLeod is one of the greatest of all time Dartmouth backs. He is not only a remarkable [illegible] but a triple threat [illegible] who can [illegible] down, while as a combination tally [illegible] he is the greatest [illegible] ever to [illegible] Hutchinson is too well known, after last season, to [illegible] at length. He is [illegible] a muchly improved player this season and with the assistance of blocking of MacLeod and Courter is a threat any time he's called upon to tote that pigskin.

Class Boxers Clash in Arena Ring Monday

Tom Kanaly says the class of the New England amateur boxers have entered for the Josh Amies-A. A.'s Golden Glove tourney that will be staged at the Arena on Monday night.

This is the third of the tryouts, and it is expected to come up to the high standard set by the previous two shows.

Later in the season there will be the Hearst All-American boxing shows. The first tryouts in the Hearst All-American matches will take place at the Arena on November 7, while there will be other tryouts on November 14, November 21 and November 28 at the New Pix and finals on December 5 and the All-Eastern finals on December 12.

Many of the boys who will compete on Monday night's show will later battle in the Hearst All-America matches.

Contests will be staged in eight classes Monday night, [illegible] open weights at 115, 125, 135, 147 and 160 pounds and heavyweights, as well as in two divisions for the novices at 147 and 160 pounds.

Among some of the entries already on file are John Lenard Raysham and Herve Liberte, Manchester, N. H., in the 115; Russell Sherry, Taunton; Jimmy Esposito, Brookline; George Ferdinand, Jr., Boston; Dean Ramos, DeSimone, Dorchester; Dick Shocks, Warner, N. H.; Henry Dunn, Manchester, N. H., and Mason Fleming, Somerville.

The lightweight class will show among others Joe Richman, Taunton; Jack Sherman, Newport, R. I.; Orlando Cirillo, E. Boston; Tony Loratonda, Lawrence; Roland Cote, Manchester, N. H.; Frank Lowery, Boston, and Charles Floyd, Leominster.

Capt. March Quits Army

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 15—Hundreds of fans who had been unable to secure accommodations yesterday, returned to town this morning, after spending the night in communities as far distant as Fairlee, Vt. . . . Mel Merritt one of the Big Green immortals, was among the early arrivals . . . As was Mike Gullian, the former Brown captain . . . Captain Andy March will never his connections with the public relations department at West Point at the end of the football season . . . He did a fine job as publicity director for Army . . . Manager Jack Adams has assigned "Chuck" Conacher to work on the Red Wings' first line with Marty Barry and Herbie Lewis . . . While on an exhibition tour with Les Canadiens abroad last spring, Jack Adams signed four puck chasers who played for Harringay racers of England, Bob Whitelaw, Buck Jones, Jack Milford and Jack Keating, who was a 32 goal man last season . . . After a short visit to his home in Iowa and a couple of weeks of duck shooting in Michigan, Bing Miller the Detroit Tiger coach, will spend the remainder of the off season working in a Detroit auto plant . . . Eddie Powers, Jr., must be as able and as versatile an athlete as was his father before him . . . Young Eddie is in Ottawa trying out for one of the city league hockey clubs but he is also a candidate for a berth with the Ottawa Rough Riders, a football team . . . Thorny Lee, the White Sox Pitcher, is building an auto trailer camp at Phoenix, Ariz . . . Don Francisco, who was president of the Hollywood baseball club, has been transferred to New York by the advertising company with which he is affiliated as an executive . . . So Victor Ford Collins has been elected to succeed him as boss of the ball club . . . Pete Clark, freshman halfback at Illinois, is a nephew of Coach Potsey Clark of the Brooklyn Dodgers . . . Potsey was a great quarterback for the fightin' Illini . . . Mike Brady has resigned as professional at winged foot . . . Fred Brice, veteran head coach at the University of Maine is a graduate of the Massachusetts school of optometry . . . In the International league coaches are allowed to act as pinch hitters and then to return to their regular jobs.

MARION FEMIA PAULINE POPILOPILUS HELEN O'BRIEN

MARY FEMIA I MADERIUS ANN DONOVAN F O'BRIEN

When seven beautiful girls start cheering, something must click. That accounts for the success of the Educator football team that plays the Burlington town team Sunday at Burlington. Marion Femia, Mary Femia, Pauline Popilopilus, Irena Maderius, Helen O'Brien, Anna Donovan and Frances O'Brien, all former high school cheer leaders, will give the Noddle Island lads the incentive to score a victory.

Gloucester High Meets 'Headers'

Headlining the schoolboy football program, Arlington and Malden high school elevens clash this afternoon at Warren Pierce Field in a grid battle that should go a long way in bringing forth an outstanding contender for the state championship honors.

Arlington, in its four starts this season, has been victorious by decisive margins to such an extent that the home club should enter the game on the favorite end of the betting.

Coach Fred Ostergren is giving no weight to the heavy Golden Tornado—matching pound for pound with a slight advantage in the backfield. The same quartet that opened Arlington's most successful season will be on the field at the starting whistle.

MILLS AT QUARTER

Billy Mills will be at his usual quarterback post with Ed Burns and the 195-pound Walter "Whizzer" White at the halfback and Ed Teton at full. This group, behind a line that has been bowling over opponents all season, is sure to keep the Malden front wall on its toes.

Coach Warren McGuirk, after a week's debating, has decided to start Rupe Ray at half back in place of Joe Verrengia—the only change in the regular group.

Taking over second place in importance, Gloucester high school entertains Marblehead in the Fishermen's haven in a tie that should find Gloucester on the large end of a large score.

The Headers played Wednesday which will prove no aid to their stability in facing that flying backfield of Russ O'Maley, Mooter Albert and the Curcuru brothers, Joe and Phil.

Brockton high, still smarting from an early season embarrassment, will be out to rub it in at the Dickinson Stadium when the Shoe City squad faces Newton. Coach Ralph Sanborn has been hit as hard as the Cubs' pitchers and holds little hope of checking the invaders' attack.

TOSSUP AT HAVERHILL

Haverhill and Waltham hook up in a game that in former years was a highlight. Jim Mansfield's boys were evidently set for a good season until upset by Lynn Classical last week, so that their rating has dropped to make today's meeting a tossup between two fair clubs.

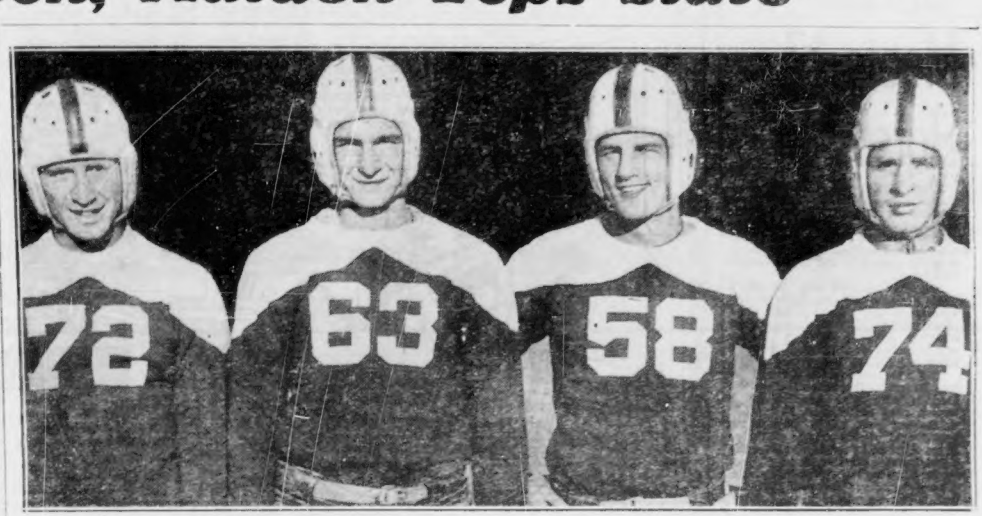
Phil Caminiti, Watch City ace, may prove the margin of victory over the former Hurricaners.

Everett and Revere High Schools leave the Bay State for their weekly competition and both should return on the winning ends of their scores. Everett goes to Manchester Central while Revere travels to Nashua.

Kevin Mulcahy should lead his Winthrop High to a victory over Swampscott in a close clash on the North Shore.

Lynn Classical takes over the Stadium to entertain Leominster. Bill Joyce's outfit will find the going tough but should continue its fine work and defeat the out-of-towners.

Medford entertains Worcester North while Melrose's razzle-dazzle will be put into action for the benefit of the Beverly Eusters—seeking a split in their two games this week.



Fifth In Row What manly lads they raise in Gloucester. This quartet should make it hot for Marblehead high. Crack backfield quartet, all veterans, who are keeping Fishermen in state title race. Left to right: Phil Curcuru, Captain Mooter Albert, Russ O'Maley, Joe Curcuru. All four are clever basketball players, as well, and prove it the way they handle a football. Famous Plays

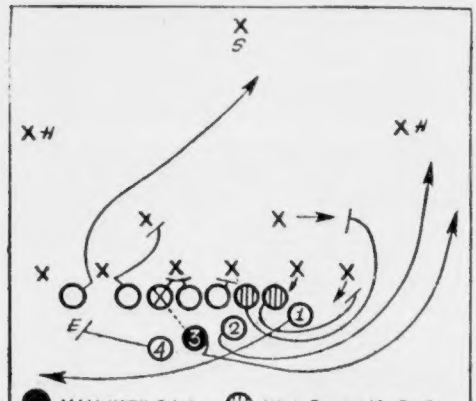
By BOB HIGGINS, PENN STATE COACH



PENN STATE FAKE REVERSE

This fake reverse play scored two touchdowns for Penn State last year. It goes well against either a six or seven-man line. Ball is passed to No. 3 back, who fakes to No. 1 back, No. 4 back gets weak side end, No. 2 back fakes to the weak side and comes back and leads the play, long end and tackle pull out as if going to weak side, long end takes defensive end and long tackle the defensive fullback, inside tackle takes guard, strong guard and center take defensive guard, short guard goes through for defensive center, short end bumps defensive tackle and goes down for safety man, No. 3 fakes ball to No. 1 back and goes wide to strong side.

Army Eleven Picked to Win

guards, and Gillie, center, were evenly matched with the middle of the Harvard line.

Elaborate pre-game calculations really resolved down to the backfields, and on 1938 performance Army had the jump.

But a week of intensive drilling on backfield finesse under Harlow was something to meditate on.

Harlow's concept of a deceptive attack, deadly to any opponent when clicking, began to sink in during this week's practice.

Many of the rough edges were filed down, and to one who saw the team work out for its first three games it appeared the Crimson had a better chance to cause an upset than in either the Brown or Cornell engagements.

True to the tradition of Army and Harvard rivalry this game was due to develop fireworks, before twilight and the football authors interred it in cold type and memories.

Gridiron Star Suffers Fracture

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 15 (AP)—Eugene Kindlon of Albany, a guard on the Albany Christian brothers team, suffered a possible fracture of the skull during a football game with Lasalle Academy.

He is in critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital. Kindlon was hurt in scrimmage during the second period of play.

'Biscuit' Meets 17 Horses

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Seabiscuit, hard-hitting colt from Charles S. Howard's stable, bids for third place among the leading money winners of the turf today when he opposes 17 other high-ranking horses in the $7500 Laurel Handicap.

The five-year-old son of Hard Tack already has won $223,980 and victory in the Laurel would send him past Gallant Fox and within striking distance of Sun Beau's world record of $376,744. Equipoise is second on the list with $338,610.

The mile race probably will be the Biscuit's last race before he tangles with War Admiral in a match race at Pimlico, November 1. He has been asked to pick up top weight of 126 pounds and give from eight to 24 to his rivals in the Laurel, but nevertheless he figures to be the heavily played favorite. The Howard ace also will have the consistent Kayak 2d as a running mate.

IDLE MISS POTENTIAL

Among his leading rivals are B. F. Christmas' Idle Miss, a recent winner in New York, A. C. Compton's entry of Sun Egret and Gerald, Donald Christmas' Accolade, J. A. Manfuso's Aneroid, Maxwell Howard's The Chief and D. A. Wood's Busy K.

Chief of Jamaica's two features is the $5000 Remsen Handicap, which brings a half-dozen 2-year-olds together for a sprint of six furlongs. William Woodward's Johnstown, a stake winner in Maryland after failing in the Belmont Futurity, is the natural choice over Hal Price Headley's Hants, Warren Wright's Beau James and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Lovely Night.

A field of ten high ranking platers in the mile and sixteenth of the $3000 Long Island claiming stakes is headed by Louie Strube's Rust, Herman Phillips' combination of Fair Stein and Scrooge and C. S. Bromley's Our Ketcham.

Tommy Thompson Hurls Four Scores

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15 (AP)—Tommy Thompson, Tulsa University's brilliant sharpshooter, threw four touchdown passes as the Golden Hurricane walloped St. Louis University, 28 to 0, in a Missouri Valley Conference contest last night.

The first two, in the second and third quarters, were to John McKibben, 200-pound end. He scored on the first one but was stopped on the one-yard line on the second. George Farmer, who kicked three extra points, plunged it over. And Bill Grimmitt and Pat Smith scored the last two counters on long heaves from Thompson.

Park Grid Team Active Tomorrow

Boston Park League football fortunes will be tossed again into the ring tomorrow afternoon when the third Sunday of scheduled games in the city championship drives is conducted by the Park Department.

Of foremost intersectional interest is the visit of the Scarlet and White Club to South Boston where they engage the Chippewas at the Stadium; the Scarlets fresh from their triumph over the Codmans last week.

Other Park East divisional games will have the Mattapan Merchants, divisional leaders, attempting to secure their third victory at the expense of the McCormack Club at Walker Field and the Codmans return to Roberts Field where they will kick off to the East Boston Town team.

In the Western section, Fens Stadium will hold the Dolan Club vs. Roslindale Holy Name tussle. Sheldon Club goes to Noyes Park in East Boston where they play the Saint Lazarus outfit, and the Geraghty Club of Roxbury will run into the divisional leading Charlestown Town team at Barry Playground, Charlestown.

The Bunker Hillers have been the pace-setters in their first year in top Park League competition and from the brand of fast, hard-hitting football which they have displayed, their entrance into the top loop, after three successive championships in the Varsity League, was well warranted.

Bagby

Red Sox Rookie Joins Benedicts

ATLANTA, Oct. 15 (AP)—Jim Bagby of Atlanta, 23-year-old pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, and Miss Leola Hicks, 21, also of Atlanta, were married here last night.

The marriage climaxed a romance which began two years ago when Bagby, son of the former major league pitcher, James C. Bagby, met Miss Hicks on the basketball court.

Bagby made his big league start this summer, pitching the opening game against the New York Yankees and winning, 8 to 1.

After the ceremony the couple motored to Birmingham to attend the Alabama-Tennessee football game.

Yarnell Team At Brookline

Lowell Textile, which has been bumped around for two years, landed at Kent Field, Brookline, today, seeking a triumph over Northeastern.

Scheduled as a "breather" for the Huskies last spring, the lads from Lowell have been the big surprise of New England this fall. To add further to Coach Jimmy Dunn's woe, his first team is badly shattered by injuries and he has been forced to decide on a makeshift eleven.

With the Huskies in bad shape, Tech entered the game an even money shot in view of the fact that they have three standouts.

Ralph Freeman, at center, is a former All-Scholastic from Everett and very well known at Northeastern for he was a star with the Huskies just three years ago; Bart Madden, former Arlington High star rated with Charley O'Rourke as the greatest schoolboy passers in this part of the country while Rudy Meuser, Lowell signal caller is the leading scorer in the east today.

With a club built around this trio the team from Lowell is a real threat.

Duquesne Team Victors, 13 to 0

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15 (AP)—Duquesne University pounded out a hard-won 13—0 victory over little West Virginia Wesleyan before 6212 spectators at Forbes Field.

Five fumbles and a 15-yard holding penalty halted several promising Duke drives. Allan Donelli, speedy sophomore halfback reserve, slid off right tackle from the four-yard line for the first score.

Armstrong Faces Kayo by Garcia

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS)—In craftmanship, his work is somewhat below the standard set by the Joe Wolcotts, Jack Britons, Mickey Walkers and those other welterweights of another day, for, really, he is pretty crude.

Nevertheless, Ceferino Garcia is about to find himself in the paradoxical spot of being favored to beat the man they have been designating as the greatest fighter of these time.

According to the odds prevalent now, the flaining Filipino will enter the ring here on November 2 rated about 6 to 5 to denude Henry Armstrong of the world welterweight championship.

With that, if it so transpires, Armstrong will be twice denuded. Only recently, he gave up the featherweight title because he no longer could make the weight.

UP FAST, DOWN FAST

Armstrong probably is the best lightweight in the world, and to that title he probably will cling for a long, long time, but a retrogression seemingly is to be about as speedy as his ascendancy to pugilistic preeminence.

He was and still is the first man ever to win and hold three titles at the same time.

He took them all within a period of 16 months, knocking out Petey Sarron for the feather title, then outpointing Barney Ross for the welter crown and Lou Ambers for the lightweight title, the latter conquest being perpetrated last Aug. 17.

In giving up the feather crown, Armstrong did exactly what everybody knew he would do. Of course, he may get by Garcia and still remain the lightweight and welter champion, but everybody doubts it.

Personally, I think he will be lucky to escape a knockout.

In any case, if he loses, the man who suddenly dominates the three divisions of boxing dominates only two now, and you can find very few who will string along with him against Garcia.

Indeed, some even insist they will back ambers in a return match.

AMBERS WAS TOUGH

Whether he can beat Ambers must be problematical. Anyhow, he was tiring rapidly and weakening from loss of blood in his bout that gave him Ambers title. But what about Garcia?

Just this:

The Filipino will weigh about 145 to Armstrong's 134, and Garcia probably is the toughest man and hardest puncher in the ring today pound-for-pound.

He gave Ross such a tussle that their bout stole the carnival of champions show last September, and thus he is challenged for the second time.

He punches with either hand, is tough, rugged and probably will stop Armstrong. Garcia has knocked out 11 of his last 12 opponents.

Armstrong has been resting since the Ambers' bout, last Aug. 17, out through that one he scored 56 knockouts in 39 states.

It just happens that he is a good little man; Garcia is a good big man.

Stanford Team All 'Worked Up'

PALO ALTO, Cal., Oct. 15 (INS)—The Stanford Indians were rated a toss-up against the Conference-leading Oregon Webfeet in their game here today. Stanford fans were fired by reports that Coach Tex Oliver of the Webfeet considers the Stanford game only a "breather" before his team goes East to meet Fordham next week.

'Bama' Captain Unable to Play

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 15 (AP)—Coach Frank Thomas shocked Alabama football fans with the announcement that Charlie Holm, regular fullback, might not start against Tennessee here in the South's headline battle of unbeaten teams.

Holm suffered a wrenched knee a week ago and has been out of active practice all week.

Dickey For Browns?

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Ed Barrow and Joe McCarthy will have fits when they hear those reports from St. Louis that Bill Dickey will be player-manager of the Browns next season . . . Minnesota sports scribes still are writing about the great fight Purdue put up against the Gophers last Saturday.

Why all the hullabaloo about Rogers Hornsby's $10,000 salary at Baltimore as being a minor league record? . . . Didn't Chuck Dressen get that much at Nashville last season?

* * *

Tony Palazzio, San Francisco promoter, is burned up because he didn't land the Fred Apostoli-Young Corbett match, which would have been a natural out there . . . Stu Hemingway, Yale guard who was injured on the first play in the Penn game, still is under observation in a Philadelphia hospital.

Frisch Applies For Brown Job

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15 (AP)—Frankie Frisch, deposed manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, would like to manage the St. Louis Browns next year, General Manager William O. De Witt of the Browns disclosed.

De Witt announced that the Fordham Flash was "among those who have applied" to succeed Gabby Street, whose contract was not renewed.

If Frisch gets the call it will be the second time in his career as a major league manager he has succeeded the "Old Sarge." In mid-season, 1933, he took over for the Cardinals when Gabby was fired.

De Witt also listed as aspirants for the post three other former managers—all veterans of the National League. They are Jimmy Wilson, who quit the Philadelphia Phillies at the end of the season; Burleigh Grimes, fired from his Brooklyn post, and Max Carey, one-time Brooklyn manager.

"We are still considering all the candidates," De Witt asserted.

Educators' Club Busy Sunday

The Educator Club journeys to Burlington Sunday with high hopes of topping the powerful Burlington Town Team.

Led by such backfield luminaries as Ripper De Leo and Dick Roach, the Educators seem pointed toward their third straight win. With a line that averages 185 pounds and a fast, scrappy backfield, they stand out as the fastest opponents to meet the Burlington Club this year.

And if, perchance, they do lose, it will be no fault of the eight pretty cheerleaders who will accompany the team on Sunday.

GAMECOCKS WIN

SUMTER, S. C., Oct. 15 (AP)—Scoring once in the first period and three times in the last half, the University of South Carolina Gamecocks vanquished the Davidson Wildcats, 25 to 0, before a Sumter County Fair crowd of 3500.

Giants Bent On Beating Grid Eagles

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS)—There may be quite a shift in the standing of the clubs in the National Football League tomorrow.

The champion Washington Redskins, seeking to hold their lead in the Eastern division, will tangle with the Detroit Lions at Detroit.

Philadelphia Eagles, who earlier in the season scored an amazing upset victory over the New York Giants, will try to repeat the performance.

Chicago Bears and Chicago Cardinals—the top and bottom teams of the Western division of the league—will clash at Wrigley Field, Chicago, and the Brooklyn Dodgers will tackle the Pirates in Pittsburgh.

League officials expect a total of 150,000 fans to see these four games.

Probably the biggest crowd will be at the Polo Grounds to watch the Giants endeavor to wipe out the memory of their defeat at the hands of the Eagles.

The Giants completely outplayed the Eagles in their first meeting but lost when the Philadelphians literally stole the ball for two touchdown runs.

The Bears should beat the Cardinals but the Redskin-Lion game is a toss-up. Dutch Clark has plugged some gaps in his Lions, which now figures to be the team to beat the western division.

The Dodgers and Rams probably will put on a pitching duel with Ace Parker throwing passes for the Brooklynites and Cecil Isbell for the Packers.

Dobie Drills Eagles For Temple Game

Boston College gridmen had a regulation workout this morning, racing through formations with increasing smoothness in preparation for next Friday night's game in Philadelphia against Temple.

Ernie Schwortzer, ace guard, is the sole Boston College casualty from the Detroit game, and he is expected to be ready for full duty starting Monday. He sustained a bad bruise, which was reported today as healing rapidly.

Only Ira Jivilekian, flashy back out with a bad leg cut, is now apparently out for the Temple test.

R. I. STATE LOSES

KINGSTON, R. I., Oct. 15 (AP)—The Rhode Island State cross-country team suffered its first defeat in seven years of dual competition when it bowed to a well-balanced University of New Hampshire squad, 21—35.

Cochrane

Hangs Up Mask

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15 (INS)—Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane, Detroit manager who was ousted a few weeks before the American League season closed, is definitely through with baseball.

This was the word brought here by Jimmy Dykes, White Sox pilot, who said Cochrane will devote all his time to a tire product agency he is opening in Detroit.

Cochrane is still puzzled as to the real reason why he was discharged, Dykes said.
